R. W. Mayhew Urges Steel Industry Here

VANCOUVER (CP)—R. W. Mayhew, M.P. for Victoria, declared in an address here today that in the postwar world "domestic and international economies must go forward together and labor and management must decide that they are expected to share their problems."

Mr. Mayhew said "too many people resent any discussion of a post-war world until the world is over," and added that "superannuation and old-age pensions will form an important item in our planning."

He said he favored establishment of a steel industry in British Columbia because "this industry is too congested now in eastern Canada."

Tire Theft Charges In Vancouver

VANCOUVER (CP)—City police said today they believed they had broken up a tire theft ring in the city with arrest of a 27-year-old truck driver and three juveniles on charges of auto theft.

Police charge the gang stole autos and abandoned them after stripping them of their wheels, and disposed of the tires through undercover channels. The truck driver will appear in city police court and the youths in juvenile court Thursday.

Hongkong Prisoners Get Food, Clothing

LONDON (CP)—The Red Cross and St. John Ambulance Association announced today it had been advised by Geneva that relief supplies for prisoners of war in Hongkong had been delivered at the Fort Stanley Camp, and partly distributed.

R. Zindel, International Red Cross delegate at Hongkong, said the goods had been received with great enthusiasm. The contingent included 1,000 tons of food, clothing and drugs from Britain and the Dominions. Prisoners of war in Hongkong include a number of Canadians.

Workers Graded For Priorities According to Jobs

OTTAWA (CP)—The Ottawa Evening Journal said this afternoon that the jobs of all working Canadians have been "measured by the yardstick of priority, currently being applied in channeling labor into essential industry."

"The butcher, baker, candlestick-maker all have been graded and the first Canadian newspaper to gain access to the official list of job priorities," the Journal said.

VOLUNTARY SO FAR

"The priority yardstick so far has been used only in the voluntary transfer of labor from dispensable civilian jobs to essential occupations."

"Should the government later decide that compulsion is necessary in the transfer of labor, the priority listing would be followed."

"This grading of essential jobs likely will be used to a greater degree in operation of the compulsory military draft."

The Journal said the grading of jobs is a basic guide for labor transfers and is subject to frequent revisions as the need arises. The gradings are: A—top priority; B—high priority; C—low priority; D—no priority.

D AND C LISTED

It gave example of "preliminary listings" of industries and occupations, saying the following are included in the grouping D for men and C for women:

"Clerical office workers; staffs of retail stores and wholesale houses, except for establishments dealing in coal, wood, ice, building materials and agricultural instruments, where the work is of a heavy manual nature; salesmen, messengers, doormen, elevator operators, ushers and those employed in light delivery service."

"Persons employed in banks, financial houses and insurance and real estate offices; in cleaning, dyeing, pressing and laundering services; in hotels and lodging houses; in restaurants, cafes and taverns; in shoe-shine parlors; in theatres, dance halls, night clubs, sports arenas, skating rinks and other recreational services; in parking lots and filling stations."

I Dead, 2 Injured In Seattle Slide

SEATTLE (AP)—Trapped in the wreckage of their home when it gave way, Mrs. Ruth Grapp, 50, wife of Dr. George L. Grapp, was fatally injured early today. The entire structure slid 300 yards down a ravine to its destruction.

Dr. Grapp was found critically injured by rescue workers who waded in mud to their hips. Broken water mains created a flood at the scene.

Alaska Road Opening

Completed in "impossible" record time, the Alcan Highway, America's "Burma Road" to Alaska, was officially dedicated at Whitehorse, Yukon Territory, Canada. The scene shows four enlisted men (foreground) chosen for their meritorious work on the highway, ready to step forward and hold the road-spanning ribbon. Arrow indicates Brig. Gen. A. O'Connor, in command of the project. In the group are: Hon. Ian Mackenzie, who represented the Canadian government; Canadian Mounties with the fur caps and Peter Stursberg, Victoria boy, now with the CBC, who headed the radio party and made the transcriptions of the historic event for use over both Canadian and U.S. networks. Temperature was below zero.

Labor Bodies Ask Mitchell Quit Cabinet

OTTAWA (CP)—The Trades and Labor Congress of Canada and the Canadian Congress of Labor today made public a joint letter sent to Prime Minister King asking for the resignation of Labor Minister Mitchell.

The letter was dated Nov. 27. Officials of the congresses said no reply has yet been received.

Signed by Percy R. Bengough, acting president of the Trades and Labor Congress, and A. R. Mosher, president of the Canadian Congress of Labor, the letter said Mr. Mitchell had lost the confidence of the organized workers in Canada and thus could not serve properly as labor minister.

MENTION LITTLE

The letter recalled statements made by the two organizations when it was rumored Elliott M. Little of Quebec was about to resign as director of National Selective Service. In these statements it had been indicated "that the responsibility for the failure of the manpower program must be placed upon the Hon. Humphrey Mitchell." Mr. Mitchell had failed to clear up charges made by Mr. Little in his letter of resignation.

"This matter goes far beyond personalities, so far as organized labor is concerned," the joint letter said. "It is simply a further indication of the incapacity of the present Minister of Labor to carry out the duties of that office in a manner acceptable to labor."

B.C. SHIPYARDS

Since his appointment there had been serious unrest among shipbuilding workers on the Pacific coast and among steelworkers.

"In general the administration of the national and regional war labor boards, for which he is responsible, has been highly unsatisfactory to the workers, principally because of the restrictive nature of the wage-control legislation," the letter continued.

ASK REPRESENTATION

As to boards, the letter said repeated demands had been made by both organizations for "adequate representation on all government bodies."

"They have no representation whatever on boards or committees determining or administering production, price control or Selective Service policies, and Mitchell has apparently been either unwilling or unable to improve this situation; it now is more unsatisfactory than ever."

Invite Mme. Chiang

VANCOUVER (CP)—Two Chinese organizations, the Chinese Benevolent Association and the Chinese National Salvation League of Canada, have invited Madame Chiang Kai-shek to visit Vancouver before returning to China. The wife of the Chinese generalissimo is now in Washington.

Axis Removing Air Force From Tunisia Bases

LONDON (CP)—The Bizerte airfield has been rendered almost useless by heavy Allied air bombardments and there are signs that the German air force is withdrawing from Tunisia to its bases on Sicily, Reuters reported today in a dispatch from Allied headquarters in north Africa.

Meanwhile an authoritative source at headquarters in north Africa said Flying Fortresses and light and medium bombers had battered the Axis-held Tunisian coastal bases of Bizerte, Tunis and Gabes today in the greatest 24-hour air assault of the north African campaign, and added that the battle for Tunisia is "in the critical stage."

The Allies were in contact with the enemy at several points in the rugged mountains between Mateur and Djedjeda. These towns are about 20 airline miles apart, but the railroad linking them winds over considerably greater distance.

Allied Forces Lengthen Wedges

Another official announcement from headquarters said Allied columns, striking across Tunisia under skies being rapidly cleared of the enemy air force, steadily are lengthening two wedges aimed at separating Axis forces in Tunis and Bizerte and cutting them off from their last land route to Tripoli.

One British and U.S. force was reported today stabbing close to the coast, only a few miles short of its goal of severing the last highway communication left to the enemy garrisons at Bizerte and Tunis.

Another force of Americans and Free Frenchmen was plunging toward the coast farther to the south in a race to seize the Tunis-Tripoli road skirting the Mediterranean shore in east central Tunisia.

Despite the growing Allied command of the air, an authoritative source, who could not be identified by name, stressed that much bitter fighting still is expected before the Germans and Italians finally are thrown out of North Africa.

A Fighting French communique announced that French forces entered Pont du Fahs, about 30 miles southwest of Tunis on the inland railroad, in an advance towards the coast.

Bizerte got its usual shower of Allied bombs overnight, the Algiers radio announced, with docks of the sprawling naval base the chief target. Four German planes were destroyed and one Allied craft was lost.

In a left-handed admission that the Axis was on the defensive in Tunisia, Rome announced that air-supported Axis armored forces "resisted Anglo-American forces on the move in Tunisia." The Fascist war bulletin claimed some prisoners were taken, but did not say how many.

Second Year on the First Front

Supreme Court Asked to Pass On Wartime Orders

OTTAWA (CP)—Powers of wartime controllers to issue orders with the effect of law enactments will be tested in the Supreme Court of Canada Dec. 14 under a reference filed with the court registrar today.

Wide powers given to the various controllers of supplies, rentals, employment and other factors entering into normal activity will be tested on a question of a typical case, the appointment and powers of the chemicals controller.

The reference, embodied in an Order-in-Council passed Monday at the request of Justice Minister St. Laurent, follows several instances in which courts in Toronto and Kingston, Ont., dismissed charges laid under authority of wartime control orders which were not Orders-in-Council.

GLYCERINE ORDER

Taking the chemicals control as a typical example of this method of controlling wartime economy, the reference asks the court:

"1. Are the regulations in relation to chemicals, dated the 10th day of July, 1942 P.C. 4996 aforesaid, ultra vires of the Governor in Council either in whole or in part, and if so, in what particular or particulars and to what extent?"

"2. Is the order dated the 16th day of January, 1942, respecting Glycerine (referred to as Order No. C.C. 2-B) ultra vires of the Controller of Chemicals either in whole or in part, and if so, in what particular or particulars and to what extent?"

TO CLARIFY IT ALL

By this method the government seeks to establish beyond question the legality of the Orders-in-Council appointing wartime economic controllers and of the powers vested in such controllers.

Outstanding among the orders are those which fix the maximum rent which may be charged on real estate, control movements of persons from one employment to another, restrict the use of and trade in gasoline and rubber, wages stabilization and compulsory cost of living bonuses, and many other rigid directions which have the effect of law.

Plan Secret Talk On Darlan Pact

LONDON (CP)—Foreign Secretary Eden told the Commons today that a statement concerning the position of Admiral Jean Darlan in the military and political situation in north Africa would be made soon at a secret sitting of the House.

Aneurin Bevan, Labor, protested that a debate on Darlan at a secret session would cause "grave disquiet." Many would think the government was "up to some trickery in this matter."

Earl Winterton, Conservative, suggested the government take the occasion of a secret sitting on north Africa to explain the delay in a statement concerning the recent chaining of prisoners of war in Germany, Britain and Canada.

All Ford Staff At Work Again

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP)—Production was resumed today in the great plant of the Ford Motor Company of Canada here when striking workmen returned to their jobs after having been idle for a week.

Men from some departments returned to work on the midnight shift, while all day shift workers reported this morning.

Meanwhile plans went forward for the investigation of the status of 37 women whose employment in one department of the plant gave rise to the strike. The union maintained the women were hired on men's jobs at wages lower than those paid to men, in violation of a union-company collective bargaining agreement.

Mr. Justice C. P. McTague of the Supreme Court of Ontario has been appointed to study the cases of the women and both the company and union have agreed to accept his decision. He will begin hearing evidence tomorrow.

Lt.-Gov. in Edmonton

EDMONTON (CP)—Hon. W. C. Woodward, Lieutenant-Governor of British Columbia, accompanied by Mrs. Woodward and his sister-in-law, Mrs. A. L. Wilson of Coburg, Ont., arrived here today on a two-day business visit. He will return to the coast Thursday.

Club Overcrowded Says Fire Witness At Boston Inquest

BOSTON (AP)—A witness before an inquest board testified today Boston's Coconut Grove night club was overcrowded when a flash fire that took an officially estimated toll of 449 lives raced like lightning through ceiling draperies that "looked like gauze."

The inquest board, which earlier had heard official testimony that fire prevention conditions in the club were "good," called Maurice Levy of Boston as the first of a dozen witnesses.

Unshaven and haggard, Levy said he had lost his wife in the blaze.

Fire Commissioner William Arthur Riley asked if the club was crowded. "It was overcrowded," Levy answered.

This forenoon the Boston Committee on Public Safety reported the death toll from the Saturday night fire was 449, instead of 484 as previously announced.

The new total was reached after checking and rechecking the list of dead built up since the tragedy. The committee said all but five of the victims—four women and one man—had been identified, and at the same time placed the number of injured at 172.

R.C.A.F. Contingent Arrives in Britain

A BRITISH PORT (CP)—The growing strength of the R.C.A.F. in Britain has been increased with the arrival of a good-sized contingent, mainly air crew members, after a safe Atlantic crossing.

Most of the young men who piled off their ship at this port, were eager Canadian youngsters, but the draft contained an unusually large number of United States citizens serving in the R.C.A.F., and a few R.A.F. flying personnel returning to Britain after receiving their wings in Canada under the Commonwealth Air Training Plan.

Butter Price Up

OTTAWA (CP)—Wholesale prices of butter were higher across Canada today in line with a sliding scale of prices announced by the Prices Board in May to encourage production in months of low output.

In British Columbia, Ontario and Quebec the November wholesale price for first-grade creamery butter solids, F.O.B. delivery point, was 35¢ cents a pound, rising to 36¢ for December.

Railway Centre Equal to Loss Of Half Berlin

By EDDY GILMORE

MOSCOW (AP)—Hitler's own appeal was reported today to be spurring the Nazis in a desperate but unsuccessful fight to recapture railway lines, south of Rzhev and southwest of Velikie Lukh on the central Russian front west of Moscow.

So vital is Rzhev to the Germans' vast network of communications, said Red Star, that Hitler telegraphed his commander there emphasizing the threat to the city and warning that "the loss of Rzhev is equal to the loss of half of Berlin."

Every thrust in a new series of counter-attacks was beaten off, the army newspaper said.

(The BBC, heard in New York by CBS, said the Russians and Germans already were locked in fierce fighting within Rzhev and a London Evening News dispatch from Stockholm said Russian shock troops were battling the Germans from house-to-house.)

(Russians, in an earlier offensive, had closed pincers around Rzhev from north and south and had won a foothold in the city's outskirts. There has been no indication that they ever were dislodged. The new report, therefore, may refer to Russian forces attacking from wedges long since cut into the Nazi defences.)

Fall to Stop Russian Drive

Axis troops trapped before Stalingrad also were counter-attacking, but there, too, Russian reports said, stiffening German resistance had failed to stem the Red army's drives.

With another 2,500 invaders listed by the moon communique as killed in overnight fighting, Red Star said German losses in dead were almost 125,000 on the two fronts. (The toll announced in communiques so far, however, totaled only 91,550.)

Within Stalingrad itself, the Soviet garrison was said to be making slow but steady progress in heavy fighting. There were no reports, however, that the besiegers had been driven from any areas of major importance.

One dispatch said the Russians had advanced from three to six miles "near Stalingrad," but did not specify whether this was northwest or southwest of the city.

Nazis Drop Food To Trapped Troops

Northwest of Stalingrad, German transport planes were said to have dropped food and munitions to encircled garrisons.

The Russians said Nazi officers were trying to conceal from their men that they were cut off. However, these probably were isolated—though strong—enemy units, and Soviet dispatches did not intimate the whole enemy army had been surrounded between the Volga and the Don.

Snow and fog hampered air operations in that area, but the Russians also put planes in the air and said about 300 Nazi infantrymen had been killed in two days by Red army bombing and aerial machine-gunning assaults.

The struggle for the railroad connecting Rzhev and Vyazma appeared all the more important, for Red Star said after the Red army's offensive last winter deprived the Germans of what then was the main line of communication—the Rzhev-Riga line—supplies to Nazi troops were moved to the central front by way of Vyazma into Rzhev.

Although the railroad is only a single track line, the Germans were able to send more than a score of trains daily each way before Soviet troops severed it.

Trawler Bags Plane

LONDON (CP)—Light guns of the trawler Finesse shot a German Focke-Wulf 190 fighter into the sea today. The aircraft was engaged in minesweeping on the southwest coast. The Finesse suffered no casualties.

Cowichan Starts Enlisting Women For Land Army

A unanimous decision of residents of the Cowichan district to form a Women's Land Service Corps under the direction of Mrs. T. H. Kingscote has received the full support of R. W. Mayhew, M.P., and Samuel Guthrie, M.L.A.

An advisory committee of six women and six farmers will have the power to enrol members, for which purpose a canvass will be made of the district. Capt. C. L. Anderson, farmer, in addressing the audience of 200, emphasized the shortage of labor on the farms, and the need for production now more than ever.

"Most of the countries of Europe today are starving or half-starving. They are looking to America as the only country with a good supply of food who can help them. We are the ones who must help them," he said. Mr. Mayhew and Mr. Guthrie declared themselves to be strongly in favor of the idea, the latter expressing the opinion that the problems of the farmer have become so acute as to warrant government intervention in the way of a subsidy.

An outline of the scheme for formation of the Land Corps was given by Mrs. Kingscote. She explained that under the system used in Great Britain wages were based on the premise that two women can do the work of one man and one boy. Full-time workers will be paid current rates of wages and part-time unskilled laborers 25c an hour.

Members of Land Corps will be divided into two categories: In A category will be those already trained and those who must be trained.

In B category will be part-time workers to be divided into groups under leaders.

The advisory committee will meet within the next day or two to make arrangements for the canvass, and start enrolling members immediately.

British Labor Offers Proposals For Postwar Era

LONDON (CP)—The Labor Party today presented the government with a plan of postwar reconstruction including continuance of major wartime controls and restrictions until normal conditions are restored.

Establishment of an international development board with a parallel finance board to assist in development of stricken and under-developed countries was recommended, and for Britain a national development board and "the finest educational system in the world."

Arthur Greenwood, former cabinet minister and the party's spokesman in the House of Commons, outlined the proposals to the House. He urged the government to give "early and sympathetic consideration" to "the bold and far-reaching plan of social security for all" which Sir William Beveridge made public. Greenwood declared the government's tendency to defer controversial issues of reconstruction until after the war.

"We cannot tolerate the prospect of a leaderless world at the end of the war, a world bleeding from its wounds without definite plans for its future," Greenwood said. It would be "the basest treachery" to repudiate wartime pledges of a better postwar world.

MINISTRY OF PLANNING
One step towards a better postwar Britain was being taken as Greenwood spoke. Lord Portal, Minister of Works, announced in the House of Lords that the government would ask Parliament to set up a ministry of town and country planning in England and Wales under a separate minister.

Greenwood said that "mess and muddle" are inevitable if the gigantic task of preparation for postwar reconstruction is left "until the days when we shall be overwhelmed by the rush of events," and told the House that "this would lead to postponement or possibly to the destruction of legitimate hopes and might end in bitter disillusionment which might in this country find ugly means of expression."

"It would be a great tragedy if having destroyed the spirit of Fascism abroad we found this country in the pangs of what some people would call a 'strong government' to deal with the chaotic situation created by lack of adequate preparation and thereby to sow the seeds of a new Fascism in our midst," he said.

"Men and women in the forces and in all walks of life are turning with greater tenacity and anxiety towards the future. This land after the war must not be littered with the crumbled ruins of noble promises made during the war."

NEW ERA

The war is witnessing the passing of an economic epoch, Greenwood said. The Atlantic Charter, the lend-lease agreement, the wheat convention, the Anglo-Soviet Treaty were all the first milestones on the road to a new epoch.

He said freedom from want must be the cardinal aim of the future as a means of prosperity for all and added there must be a greater advance in the direction of economic collaboration.

Greenwood said there are still extensive undeveloped tracts of territory but he did not believe it necessary for these regions should be overrun by hordes of financial freebooters.

"What the world must face is the establishment of an international development board with a parallel finance board to assist in economic reorganization and development of war-stricken, impoverished and under-nourished countries."

METCHOSIN HOSTESS CLUB

Metchosin Hostess Club gave entertainment to the many troops in the district with a dance Friday evening. The 5th B.C. Coast Brigade eight-piece orchestra kept the dance in a merry swing throughout the evening. Mesdames C. Pike and R. E. Waterman took care of the canteen. Tickets were in charge of Miss Ruth Beckingham.

Next Friday the "Island Revelers" band of the Fishermen's Reserve, will be in attendance.

Proposal Would Abolish All Want

Beveridge Plan for Social Reform Revolutionary In Scope, Made Public

LONDON (CP)—In the most sweeping plan of government-sponsored social security ever put forward in any country, Sir William Beveridge's Planning Commission proposed today that Britain establish a new Ministry of Social Security and virtually double the present expenditure of $1,300,000,000 annually on unemployment, health, insurance and pensions.

The broad program, which Sir William, a noted economist, acknowledged was "in some ways revolutionary," covers public welfare literally from the cradle to the grave, providing among other things for public assistance grants for births—even for unmarried mothers—marriages and up to $80 for funerals.

Labour Spokesmen Present Parallel

The outlines of the Beveridge plan, drawn up by a government-appointed committee, were made public against the background of a Commons session in which Arthur Greenwood, Labor spokesman, presented a Labor Party postwar reconstruction program which provided essentially for one development board, with a parallel finance board, to prepare assistance for war-stricken and underdeveloped countries and another for postwar Britain. Greenwood, before he was dropped from the cabinet, was the minister dealing with postwar reconstruction.

The Beveridge plan would double old age pensions from the present average of about $8 a week for a man and wife; give working women up to $40 upon marrying to compensate for a changed benefit status and extend the present, limited medical services under the workers' compulsory health insurance to comprehensive medical care for every member of the family.

A typical family of four, if the father is sick or unemployed, would get about $11.50 a week indefinitely instead of short-term payments as low as $1.50 in force before the war.

The report now goes to Parliament for action, which Sir William urged be started immediately so the program could be instituted right after the war.

He asserted that Britain's provision for the needy in industrial communities already is "on a scale unsurpassed anywhere" except on points of medical service and workers' compensation.

Abolition of Want Can Be Accomplished

"Want could have been abolished in Britain just before the present war," he said.

"It can be abolished after the war.... The proposals cover the ground which must be covered one way or another in translating the words of the Atlantic Charter into deeds."

"The abolition of want requires better distribution of wealth—not among capital, labor and management, but among the workers themselves 'as between times of earning and not earning and time of heavy family responsibilities and times of light or no family responsibilities."

The report added: "Unemployment and disability are already being paid for unconsciously. It is no addition to the burden on the community to provide for them consciously."

The report recommends that the government take over private weekly-collecting industrial insurance companies when operating costs are considered unduly high.

It proposes that workers' compensation be nationalized with a central fund to which all employees and all workers contribute.

The plan urges recognition of housewives as career women in a distinct insurance class warranting a carefully-devised benefit program "putting a premium on marriage instead of penalizing it."

Where workers now contribute 20 to 25 cents weekly to unemployment, health insurance and pensions through a complicated array of cards and stamps, they would make a single weekly contribution ranging from 30 cents for 16-year-olds not employed to 85 cents for a worker over 20. Employer contributions would range from 40 to 65 cents a worker.

The report is expected to stir wide controversy. The Conservative 1922 committee is reported already organizing opposition to the proposed greatly-increased government expenditure, and collectors for industrial insurance companies whose business is threatened were reported suggesting a possible policy loss to workmen-subscribers, even though the project is still in the plan stage.

The new program in its first year, which for comparative purposes is arbitrarily taken as 1945, would cost $2,306,212,871 compared with $1,521,900,000 spent in 1938-39 on similar services. The government would provide approximately one half with the remainder coming from employers and insured persons.

After 20 years when the plan was working in high gear it would cost an additional $708,400,000 yearly with employers and insured each paying slightly less and the government making up the difference.

Sir William said that while the plan is "in some ways revolutionary" it is "a British revolution" with the people by preference contributing to an insurance fund instead of just getting a handout from the state.

The report said the program left room for voluntary action by individuals to provide benefits

Roosevelt Makes His Own Coffee

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Roosevelt personally makes his own cup of coffee, Mrs. Roosevelt disclosed today, adding that he still insists that it makes good coffee to boil it up again.

This brings to light a second difference between his recipe and that of Mayor LaGuardia of New York. The latter advocated adding a little fresh coffee to used grounds and reusing, but Mr. Roosevelt didn't specify adding any fresh.

The President's "breakfast" is served on a tray in his bedroom, Mrs. Roosevelt said at her press conference, and he "loves to make his own coffee." He uses a small glass coffee maker on an electric burner.

Conservatory Group Plan Activities

Winter activities were planned by members of the Victoria Chapter, Toronto Conservatory of Music, at a meeting held Monday evening at the home of the past president, Miss Gwendoline Harper, Oliver Street, last evening, with 17 members present. Mrs. C. S. Beals, president, announced that the silver medalist, Sheila Bates, will play for the group at an afternoon meeting to be arranged later. Sheila was awarded the medal for grand piano, gaining the highest marks in the province in that grade.

A "record party" in January, at the home of Mrs. W. E. Milburn, Cadboro Bay Road, and an informal illustrated astronomical talk, to be given in March, were arranged. The regular meeting will be held in February, at the home of Mrs. Barrie Gault, 1260 McKenzie Street.

A musical program followed the business session. Contributing were Miss Isabelle Pike, soprano, accompanied by Mrs. Bar-

Concert Raised $37 For St. George's Hall

A capacity audience at St. George's Mission Hall, Cadboro Bay, enjoyed another of the all-time rare entertainments produced by Mr. Reginald Hincks, who also composed the main portion of the evening's amusement and took a prominent part in the acting. He was ably assisted by a talented cast drawn chiefly from the community. There were topical verses sung to well-known tunes and a clever sketch depicting the difficulties of broadcasting.

Mr. Ernest Heybroek rounded off a delightful evening by showing excellent pictures of an extended sight-seeing trip from the Philippines to the Canadian Rockies via Australia, New Zealand and Honolulu.

The proceeds in aid of the building fund amounted to $37.

Georgian Choristers To Sing Wednesday

An interesting program has been arranged by Georgina Watt, conductor of the Georgian Choristers, for the concert at Oak Bay United Church Wednesday at 8, the greater part of which will consist of new numbers. In addition to the choral numbers there will be a monologue by Jennie B. Hudson. Miss Joan Waring and Miss J. V. Mesley will render solos, and trios will also be sung by members of the choir. Robert Husband, tenor, will be guest soloist, and the Masonic Male Quartette will take part.

QUADRA P.T.A.
Quadra Study Group will meet at the home of Mrs. G. E. Graham, 3115 Glasgow Avenue, Thursday afternoon at 2.

Lawyer-Farmer To Preside Over Tory Convention

By JAMES MCCOOK

OTTAWA (CP)—Whatever happens at the Conservative National Convention at Winnipeg, Dec. 9 to 11, it will probably find the chairman calm.

H. B. Milner, K.C., of Edmonton, chairman of the committee which is making arrangements for the party get-together, is expected in Conservative circles here to preside at the convention. If so, he will be prepared for anything. There is no suggestion of anything untoward occurring, but chairmen of conventions attended by something like 900 delegates, have to be on their toes.

No one needs worry about bristling Mr. Milner being on his toes. For 21 years he has lived in Alberta, where anything is liable to happen politically—and in those 21 years he has shown himself a good lawyer, a good businessman and a good organizer for a political party, or for anything else. In addition, he is a good farmer, as proud of his broad acres, near Edmonton, as he is of anything else.

The other day, Mr. Milner came back from a tour of the west, during which he spoke at various gatherings. "Some people didn't like the things I said," he remarked. "But still they have to be said, haven't they?"

SPEAKS PLAINLY

Mr. Milner does not waste much breath talking about the old Conservative Party and the achievements of its past history. He is interested in the future, in new blood and in social changes. He went to the Conservative laymen's conference at Port Hope, Ont., in September, as one of the leaders, and without a qualm about the feelings of the party men who sit in the seats of the mighty in Parliament, and the provincial legislatures, who were not invited.

He heard lots of suggestions at Port Hope, and offered a few—all of which were frank. Harry Milner hates talking about himself. He can play a brilliant evading action with reporters when he knows they are after information about him, but he'll smoke a cigarette with anyone willing to talk about anything else. Like Murdo MacPherson of Regina and Dr. Sidney Smith of Winnipeg, both prospects for the future Conservative leadership, he went to the prairies with a stock of legal knowledge.

Milner's birthplace was Sackville, N.B., where his father, William C. Milner, a lawyer and newspaperman, gave him a hearty welcome in 1889. The first Milner in New Brunswick was a missionary, and the roots of the family are deep in the

Draft Dispute At McGill

MONTREAL (CP)—Student feeling was expressed at McGill University Monday over failure of university officials to seek deferment for John Culliton, popular assistant professor of economics, who has been called up for military training.

Early Monday a large sign appeared in the engineering building with red letters a foot high reading: "Draft James. Leave us Culliton." The sign disappeared during the afternoon.

Dr. F. Cyril James, McGill's principal and vice-chancellor, has given no indication deferment will be sought for Prof. Culliton. Students have circulated a petition asking the university to intervene.

The McGill Daily, student newspaper, commented editorially that Prof. Culliton's work was essential and "hence we have nothing but blame for a government which overrides all special qualifications in its search for manpower."

Prof. Culliton himself said he was "perfectly willing to accept the call at any time, any place, anywhere." A lieutenant in the University of Saskatchewan C.O. T.C. in 1935, he applied earlier in the war for commissions in the artillery and the navy but was turned down on both occasions for various reasons.

Say Polio Enters Body Through Mouth

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—An experiment yielding strong evidence that infantile paralysis virus gains its foothold in the body by entering mainly through the mucous membranes of the mouth has just been reported by Dr. Harold K. Faber and Rosalie J. Silverberg of Stanford University medical school.

After trying unsuccessfully to infect a monkey by planting the virus directly in the stomach and also in the intestines, they finally produced the disease in the animal by spraying its mouth with a virus solution.

As soon as it became ill it was sacrificed quickly and its nervous system was dissected minutely. They thus were able to determine which nerves had been most affected at the very onset of the disease.

Nerve centres having localized connections with the mucous membranes of the back part of the mouth called the oropharynx were found to be heavily damaged. Those having connections with other surface areas of the mouth were diseased to a lesser extent.

Infantile paralysis virus may exist indefinitely in many parts of the body, but it thrives only in nerve tissue. Just how it reaches the well-protected or deeply-buried nerve centres has been a major medical mystery.

In this single experiment, however, the evidence points significantly to the mouth and especially to the oropharynx.

San Francisco Warned Japs May Raid

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—San Franciscans were advised Monday by Maj. Gen. Walter K. Wilson to be alert for "a bold attempt on the part of the Japanese to bomb the city."

"We should not be surprised but ready for any eventuality," he said.

La Fleche Elected; Winnipeg Sends Knowles to House

Canadian Press
The Liberal administration of Prime Minister King held one Quebec seat, another went to an Independent, and the C.C.F. retained Winnipeg North Centre on Monday's three federal by-elections.

In Montreal-Outremont, Maj. Gen. L. R. LaFleche, who was appointed early in October as war services minister, registered a clean-cut victory over Jean Drapeau, self-styled "candidate of the draftees." The vote was 12,341 to 6,937.

In Charlevoix-Saguenay, Frederic Dorion, Quebec lawyer running as an Independent, defeated four opponents all running as Independent Liberals.

Winnipeg North Centre, formerly held by J. S. Woodsworth, C.C.F. leader, remained in the C.C.F. fold as Rev. Stanley H. Knowles won over two other candidates.

Party standing of the House of Commons is as follows, including Monday's by-elections:

Liberal 173, Conservative 38, New Democracy 10, C.C.F. 9, Independent Liberal 3, Liberal-Progressive 3, Independent Conservative 1, Unity 1, Independent 3, Canadian 1, Bloc Populaire 1, vacant 2. Total 245.

WIN-THE-WAR VOTE

"Let's go, boys—let's get out and win the war," Maj. Gen. LaFleche declared when his election was conceded.

"God bless and save Canada," he added. "I feel profoundly honored at the action of the electors of Outremont. I note with particular satisfaction that the French-Canadian vote has been heavy and has contributed largely to the victory of the 'win-the-war' candidate."

"I am happy to see that Quebec retains her proud position in the front ranks of those who would defend Canada and suffering humanity from the brutal aggressions of the Boches and Japs."

He knew that adherents of all political parties have contributed to this victory.

Mr. Drapeau said that "as far as we are concerned the Outremont election is only a phase in the fight for liberation that we started when we started this political campaign."

Mr. Drapeau referred to Gen. LaFleche as "the executioner" and to men of draft age as "his victims."

CHARLEVOIX-SAGUENAY
Frederic Dorion, Quebec City lawyer, showed a substantial plurality in Charlevoix-Saguenay far-flung rural riding far down the north shore of the St. Lawrence, defeating four Independent Liberal opponents, including Mrs. Pierre F. Casgrain, wife of the former member who was appointed a judge.

The count showed that 140 out of 132 polls gave Mr. Dorion 9,146 votes. Mrs. Casgrain 6,356, J. Emile Bolvin, mayor of Bale St. Paul, 2,456; Donat Lacroix of Giffard 205, and Edouard Gaudreault of La Malbaie 181. It seemed certain that all Mr. Dorion's opponents except Mrs. Casgrain would forfeit their deposits.

Mrs. Casgrain said during the campaign that she supported the policies of the King government in general but expressed her opposition to any move toward conscription for overseas service.

None of the candidates had the expressed support of the Liberal party.

Mr. Dorion had attacked the government's war effort, saying the people had been promised a moderate effort but "it has turned into a fools' dance, with the favorites of the government making fortunes."

He said that if elected he would fight against conscription for overseas service, and advocated "greater protection of our coasts."

Several times he protested against the gift of $1,000,000 to Britain by Canada.

A lieutenant in the R.A.F. late in the 1914-18 war, Mr. Dorion returned to Quebec and completed his legal studies, being called to the bar in 1920. He was Quebec district organizer of the federal Conservative Party for a time in the late 1930's.

Winnipeg Vote
Two hours after the polls had closed in Winnipeg North Centre, Konnie Johannesson, Liberal candidate, conceded the election of Rev. Stanley Knowles.

Complete returns from 169 polls showed: Knowles 11,638; Johannesson 4,718, and the third candidate, Cyril E. Rice, Labor-Progressive, 220.

Johannesson, a pilot in the 1914-18 war, who had stressed during the campaign the importance of aviation in Canada's war effort, commented:

"Evidently, we were not lucky enough to get the vote out. It was a good campaign, and I enjoyed every minute of it."

The voters' list showed a total of 41,967 eligible for ballots. Those who voted totaled 16,576.

Mr. Knowles, speaking of his success, said it was a tribute to the memory of Mr. Woodsworth, who represented Winnipeg North Centre for more than 20 years. "We accept the election as an endorsement of the C.C.F. program calling for total war effort, including conscription of wealth and industry," he said.

Both his opponents lost their deposits.

The new member, 34 years old, retired from the United Church ministry four years ago to take an active part in the C.C.F. movement.

CONGRATULATED BY PREMIER
Prime Minister Mackenzie King sent a telegram of congratulation to Gen. LaFleche, in Montreal, as follows:

"Our colleagues in the government join with me in extending heartfelt congratulations to you upon the endorsement given your appointment as a minister of the crown by the electors of Outremont in today's by-election. I shall be gratified if you will convey to the members of the constituency my warm appreciation of the support which they have given to the administration, and in particular to yourself as Minister of National War Services."

M. J. Coldwell, C.C.F. leader, in a statement said the victory of Rev. Mr. Knowles constituted "a vote of appreciation for the life and work" of J. S. Woodsworth.

Anniversary Of Price Ceiling
OTTAWA (CP)—The Prices Board today came to the end of its first year in what Donald Gordon, its chairman, called "the fight to control prices and beat inflation."

Dec. 1, 1941, a price ceiling was imposed on practically all goods and services. Persons shopping that day were told to pay prices no higher than those they paid in the period from Sept. 15 to Oct. 11 of last year.

The general price ceiling, never before tried, was applied as a brake on what Mr. Gordon, chief engineer of the price-control machinery, called "the whirligig of inflation." He estimated some time ago that without the ceiling the official cost-of-living index would have risen about 1 per cent a month in the period from November, 1941, to August, 1942.

LESS THAN IN 1914-18
Actually, the index increased by just over 1 per cent during the 10-month period. At the same time in the first Great War, the cost-of-living index was rising at a rate of about 1 1/2 per cent per month.

Notwithstanding measures of selective price control in the United States—the system used by Canada early in this war—and the adoption of a partial price ceiling, the cost of living in the U.S. between November, 1941, and August, 1942, rose 6 1/2 per cent, or an average of nearly two-thirds of 1 per cent a month.

Now the Prices Board, with the price ceiling holding, is concentrating upon curtailing non-essential production and simplifying industrial output for greater economy on materials and manpower.

One board official estimated that the price ceiling had saved Canadians about $400,000,000 in their food, clothing, fuel and other household bills during the year.

Check Speculation On Crown Purchases
OTTAWA (CP)—Cabinet approval has been given to an order-in-council setting up regulations to discourage speculation on property which may be purchased by the government for war purposes. It was learned.

The regulations provide that when property is bought or exchanged for the crown, the price shall not exceed the amount for which title has been transferred at any time within a year of purchase by the crown.

However, "a reasonable allowance on account of expenses incurred for improvement or maintenance of the property" may be added.

Any person who has received compensation or purchase money from the government for property since Sept. 10, 1939, will not be allowed to retain or receive any amount in excess of a sum paid within the year preceding sale to the crown, plus the "reasonable allowance."

On demand of Finance Minister Isley, refunds of the amounts paid in excess of the permitted sums may be required, provided the refunds shall not be required in the case of a payment made on account of a judgment of the Exchequer Court.

Heroic Stalingrad Defenders Look to Us for Medical Aid

By MARGARET GOULD

Soviet victories at Stalingrad rejoice the hearts of their allies. More than that, the truly great and heroic defence of this city evokes extreme gratitude as well.

Stalingrad is not just an ordinary city. Today it is a bastion of civilization. It is the graveyard of the arrogant Nazi hopes and plans. In defending Stalingrad, the Soviet troops have been defending the British Empire, the United States, western civilization and all that it stands for. Last October a foreign correspondent wrote: "The value of what Russia has done for Great Britain is beyond appraisal. She has given the stupendous German machine a mauling and a dislocation from which it cannot recover."

But most of all, Russia has given to Britain precious months in which to prepare for the onslaught she knows is coming and to be armed at all points.

Every hour of every day of these last four months the heroic Russians have been on the firing line.

STALINGRAD STILL STANDS
And what a firing line it is! The Germans had massed 100 divisions against Stalingrad. They had massed the greater part of their tanks and artillery, and thousands of planes. On some days 2,000 planes have darkened the skies of Stalingrad, raining tones of bombs on it. From 1,500 to 2,000 German guns have been shelling this city day and night, for almost 120 days. In the history of warfare there is no record where such large armies and such masses of equipment have been used for the conquest of a city.

But Stalingrad has not been captured by the Nazis. Stalingrad remains a Soviet city, and the bulwark of the Allied cause. Stalingrad has crippled the German military strength. The Nazis have lost heavily in men and materials, and more than that, they have lost in morale. Stalingrad has turned the tide of battle in favor of the Allies.

For this achievement the debt to the Russian people is beyond ordinary calculations. Can we ever adequately reward those to whom we owe the safety of our lives and homes?

The least that can be done is to heal the wounds of the heroic Russian fighters and send them things to provide them with strength and comfort. The least we can do is to send medical aid, clothing, bed coverings, food.

NEED MUCH AID
The Soviet people need a lot of such comforts and aid. The guns of that long and deep front pound 24 hours of every day. Daily those guns take lives and cause horrible wounds. They tear arms and legs. They rend chest and abdomen. They shatter faces and skulls. The guns of the Nazis have torn and bled the bodies of over 3,000,000 of the men and women in the Soviet Union who are fighting our enemy. The agonies of the Russian people have been incurred not alone in their cause, but in our cause as well.

The Canadian Aid to Russia Fund is appealing for $1,000,000 with which to send medical and other relief supplies to our extraordinary gallant allies. This is the least that Canadians can do to express their indebtedness to their brothers and sisters in arms. The least that Canadians can do is to relieve the suffering of the tired and wounded in the Soviet Union. Relieve the agony in the hearts of bereaved mothers. Help to repair the torn, burned, frozen limbs of the children. Help them to bandage the wounds of the brave guerrilla fighters. Help them to return and find their families with enough food and clothing.

Send your contribution today to the Canadian Aid to Russia Fund. The Victoria treasurer is Gordon A. Campbell, The Angela, 923 Burdett Ave.

The office of the Toronto committee is at 38 King St. W.

Australians Draft Constitution Changes
CANBERRA (AAP)—The Australian constitutional convention approved unanimously a motion by R. Cosgrave, Premier of Tasmania, providing the state Legislatures shall refer to the Dominion Parliament for a maximum term of seven years after the end of the war "adequate powers to make laws in relation to postwar reconstruction."

A motion by former Prime Minister Arthur Fadden to provide for an elective convention to consider constitutional amendments was withdrawn.

The convention appointed a committee of eight, consisting of

LIONS' THANKS

To the Citizens of the City and Greater Victoria:—We—the Lions Club of Victoria—express our sincere appreciation for the generous support given to the Lions' British Child War Victims Fund tag day held on Saturday, Nov. 21. The Lions Club particularly wishes to thank all the schoolboys and girls of Victoria and Oak Bay who so generously gave their time to collect $550, the net proceeds of which will be forwarded to the Waifs and Strays Society in England, for the less fortunate children of bombed Britain. We hope they, too, will have a merry Christmas.

LIONS CLUB OF VICTORIA, B.C.

BLOOD BANK

Although the origin and object of the Blood Bank, established by the Junior Women's Auxiliary of the Royal Jubilee Hospital, has been stated frequently in the press, there are still citizens who inquire as to the distribution of the blood.

The Junior Women's Auxiliary spent $1,090 on equipment to make the blood bank possible. They have given very generously of their time, for months, to secure donors and a staff to operate it. The organization has required a great deal of study. The results have proved its worth.

The processed blood is stored at the proper temperature in a safe place for the use of citizens of Victoria, the surrounding municipalities and the armed forces, in case of a general emergency. Let me repeat, the blood is not for routine use, it is to be used only at a time of public emergency. Any casualty at such a time has the right to it.

I believe St. Joseph's Hospital has announced the opening of a similar blood bank. It is to be hoped that there will be enough on hand to meet any emergency. The bank at the Royal Jubilee Hospital has sufficient for 1,200 transfusions.

T. W. WALKER, Superintendent, Royal Jubilee Hospital, Victoria, B.C., Nov. 27.

Saanich, District 1—Wardens and others interested are requested to attend a showing of talking films by J. G. Edwardson of the St. John Ambulance Association Friday evening at St. George's Hall, Cadboro Bay.

Jap Crash Divers No Suicides; Wait Till Death Certain

This story was written by an Associated Press correspondent wounded when a Japanese plane crash-dived a United States carrier sunk in an October engagement in the Pacific.

By CHARLES MCURTURY
WITH THE U.S. FLEET IN THE SOUTHWEST PACIFIC (AP)—Jap suicide divers? No! Crash divers, yes—plunging their planes into our ships after their own fate already is sealed. Afire and knowing they can't save themselves, these smart little monkeys inflict the greatest damage possible before they die. It is a first rule of war. But suicides—never.

Five Japs tried to crash-dive our carrier Oct. 26 in the Santa Cruz Islands battle. The plane of each was enveloped in flames. They knew death was but a matter of seconds. Three missed, by 30, 50 and 80 feet. Two hit. One started a bad fire which eventually was extinguished. The second which already had torpedoes us, started a lesser blaze. I talked with many officers and men not only on the carrier but other ships. None recalled ever seeing a Jap attempt to crash a vessel unless his plane was on fire. I pointed out that the Japs, then, were not committing suicide. All agreed. They hadn't thought of it that way before.

The Jap who crashed into the cruiser San Francisco off Guadalcanal in mid-November already was in flames. He killed 30 men. He was smart—making us pay heavily for the lives of himself and his gunner.

DON'T BE A BOTTLENECK

In these crowded days it's absolutely essential to make use of ALL the space in the street car—"sitting" room and "standing" room both. But somehow, when all the seats are occupied, only part of the standing room is used... one or two people on the back platform, a few in the aisle, but most standing well up to the front, jammed tight on the front platform and round the entrance. It's a really serious bottleneck. And doesn't it stand to reason that the best way to make use of all the car is to fill it from the back first?

So, to help out the situation for you and for us—when you get on the car and there's standing room only—PLEASE MOVE RIGHT-DOWN TO THE BACK.

No Surprise

THREE FEDERAL BY-ELECTIONS IN Canada yesterday produced no startling results. Maj.-Gen. L. R. LaFleche retained the Montreal-Outremont riding for the government and won his endorsement as the recently-appointed Minister of War Services with a vote of 12,341 to his "Candidate-of-the-Drafts" opponent's 6,537. The Rev. Stanley H. Knowles, C.C.F. standard-bearer in the Winnipeg seat represented by the late Mr. J. S. Woodsworth—who also was the national leader of Canada's third party—had no difficulty in defeating his Liberal and Labor-Progressive opponents. These contests, therefore, occasioned no change in the representation in the House of Commons of the ridings concerned.

In Charlevoix-Saguenay, however, the seat rendered vacant by the elevation of Hon. Pierre F. Casgrain to the Quebec Superior Court several months ago, and who had held it continuously for the Liberal party since 1917, went to Mr. Frederick Dorion, an Independent. The victor, incidentally, was a lieutenant in the Royal Air Force in the first Great War, but during the recent campaign he had bitterly assailed both Hon. R. B. Hanson and National Conservative Party leader Meighen because they were "100 per cent conscriptionists," and had said that if he were elected he would fight against conscription for overseas service. He was opposed by four Independent-Liberals, neither of whom had the official support of the government, despite the fact that the winner's nearest contender was able and progressive Mrs. Pierre Casgrain, wife of the former member, who polled—on latest reports—6,356 votes against Mr. Dorion's 9,143, the other three rolling up less than 3,000 votes between them. The Mayor of Bale St. Paul accounted for 2,456 of the minority residue.

Many of the issues in Charlevoix-Saguenay contest were purely local in character as well as anti-government on the touchy point of conscription, while Mrs. Casgrain wasted no compliments on the Ottawa administration. It is to be noted, by the way, that she was the first French-Canadian woman to attain national recognition in the business world. Three and a half years ago, while her husband was Speaker of the House of Commons, she was elected to the board of directors of the Dominion Stores Limited, Canada's largest chain organization—an especially significant honor because, at that time, Quebec was the only part of the self-governing British Commonwealth in which the so-called gentler sex had no vote in provincial parliamentary elections. It was largely through her efforts, moreover, that the ancient and romantic province, under the Liberal government of Premier Godbout, finally extended the franchise.

Although the government thus lost Charlevoix-Saguenay to an Independent who is opposed to conscription for overseas service, yesterday's three contests can in no way be construed as especially comforting to either the C.C.F. or Conservative parties.

Blackouts and Contracts

MR. JOHN ROSS STIRRETT, a Toronto lawyer, has written an article dealing with the legal effects of the blackout order as applied to neon and other electric signs on theatres, stores and billboards in various areas of Canada. Most of these "blackout-out" signs, he says, are the subject matter of long-term leases made years ago, before there was any thought of war or lighting restrictions. For the most part the contingency of a blackout is not dealt with in the written contracts of lease.

The question now facing the parties to the contracts is: "Are these rental contracts discharged and terminated by the blackout order, or must the user of the sign continue to pay rental moneys strictly in accordance with its terms?" To this, according to Mr. Stirrett, the common law gives no answer. The law has allowed the termination of contracts in certain rare conditions, but he holds that "if contracts are allowed to be terminated because of an unforeseen contingency has arisen which has frustrated the purpose of the contract, then the sanctity of contracts as a rule of law is in peril."

In Britain, he points out, the courts have applied under war emergencies the so-called doctrine of an "implied term" in contracts. The scene of the original contract is re-enacted, with the question posed to both sides: "What will happen in case of a blackout?" If the reply were, "In that event the contract would be at an end," or "it would continue in force," then the courts apply such a term in the contract and, in effect, make a bargain for the contracting parties.

However, the rules of law are still in conflict and Mr. Stirrett declares the problems involved are social and ethical as well as legal. He says legislatures "should come to the aid of the courts without delay" by enacting "statutory rules governing as many cases of frustrated contracts as possible." Out of war regulations affecting lighting and other matters, confusion is developing and steps should be taken now to obviate it. If this is not done, the way will be open for wrangling and lawsuits that should not be necessary.

Their Funeral, Not Ours

OUR ESTEEMED MAINLAND CONTEMPORARY, the Vancouver Daily Province, says some of the most amusing gratuitous advice the Conservative Party is receiving is coming from the Liberal Party press, such as the Toronto Star, the Winnipeg Free Press, "to say nothing of the lesser lights." Then the Vancouver newspaper adds:

"The flowers and the obituary notices—for that is what the articles amount to—come a bit prematurely, however. It is not good practice to bury either persons or parties before the burial certificate has been issued. And, far from being dead or nearly dead, the Conservative Party is really taking steps to renew its youth. It is true it was knocked groggy in a couple of political encounters in the past seven years. But the rare, cool atmosphere of opposition is bringing it rapidly to its senses and the muddles of the Liberal war government are offering it wonderful opportunities for recovery."

All of which is interesting and illuminating. But what strikes us as most amusing about the Daily Province is that it never knows what it wants. About the only point on which it is emphatic is that it can see little or no good in any government which wears a Liberal label. And it is entitled to that opinion if it feels that way. Perhaps it would be more satisfactory to its Conservative readers, however, if it would tell the Vancouver delegates to the Winnipeg convention what it thinks the party ought to do to "renew its youth" and how best to capitalize what it calls the "muddles of the Liberal war government."

Even "the lesser lights," as well as the Toronto and Winnipeg dailies, earnestly desire an opposition in Parliament which can contribute to the task of winning the victory and securing the peace. But if the Vancouver Province wants to earn its salt as an organ of public opinion, it at least ought to say whether it favors, for example, the "chart for National Conservative Party policy" as reflected in the "aims and beliefs" to which the progressive elements subscribed at Port Hope last September, or whether it favors the "rejuvenation" of the oppositionists by their reconsecration to the political philosophy for which Mr. Meighen and a few others stand.

Unless the Vancouver Province can make up its mind on this vital aspect of the present controversy in the ranks of the Conservatives—vital, that is, to the future of the Conservative Party—some of the awakened elements who are applauding the Port Hoppers will be apt to think our contemporary's editorial "light" has gone out entirely.

Frantic Adolf

RUSSIA'S ARMY NEWSPAPER, RED Star reports that Adolf Hitler has telegraphed to the commander of the Nazi forces in the vital Rzhev area that the loss of that city would be "equal to the loss of half of Berlin," and that it must be held at all costs. This may explain the desperate but unsuccessful fight the enemy is putting up in his attempt to recapture railway lines south of Rzhev and southwest of Vellike Luki on the central Soviet front west of Moscow.

Not only is the badly-battered Wehrmacht finding it difficult to stem the Russian offensives at three points at the same time; the Fuehrer now discovers himself compelled to admit to the German people that he can no longer promise them Stalingrad as the prize of 1942. Tomorrow is the 100th day of the siege of the great city on the Volga. But it is no longer in danger of capture. What is left of it is still in Russian hands. And when the ice thaws out next spring the great waterway which flows past its eastern suburbs will resume the role it has played in Soviet economy since it took the name of the nation's indomitable leader.

In this unpredictable of all wars it is dangerous to prophesy. But the hundred days at Stalingrad have given the free world a vivid idea of what it owes to the Russian army, the Russian people, and the leaders of the Soviet Union. Not until the history of this global conflict comes to be written will it be possible to study the enormity of Russia's sacrifices in proper perspective. Those sacrifices nevertheless, and especially in view of the important changes which have been effected in that vast Russo-German battlefield in the last three weeks, embolden us to believe that the once-mighty German Wehrmacht will not again feel like trying to repeat the offensives of last summer.

Leningrad, Moscow and Stalingrad have proved too much for Hitler and his intuition. No longer will even his most slavish worshippers believe in his promises of military victory anywhere. It may be foolish to suppose that the political situation within the Reich has seriously deteriorated. But if Italy should defect, if unrest in the hungry and disillusioned Balkan states should grow in threatening intensity, not even the Gestapo or all the Fuehrer's specially-selected elite guards will be able to prevent the rats from leaving the sinking ship.

Notes

Japan's war lords seem to be finding it difficult to phrase their announcements of Nippon's latest "great victory" in the Pacific.

During 18 months, 1,171 Canadian soldiers on active service in Britain have been admitted to No. 1 Neurological Hospital suffering from mental disorders. According to Lt.-Col. Hyland and Major Richardson of the hospital staff, these cases have been due to "prolonged sojourns of the Canadian Army without being engaged in active warfare." Hardships of war for the soldier do not stop short with fatigue or pain or injury. Just waiting is often the most trying part of it.

IN THE DISHPAN

AMONG THE IMPORTANT basic news of the times is a dispatch from Hollywood announcing that Miss Joan Crawford is doing her own housework, cooking her own meals and washing her own dishes. She cannot find a cook or a servant of any kind. Also she lacks enough gasoline for her automobile to get to work at the studios.

One can imagine no clearer symptom of our current condition than this. For remember that Miss Crawford is not only a rich woman but she is also a great folk figure in American civilization, something very close to the goddesses of ancient Greece. For 20 years or so the beauties of Hollywood have taken the place of an ancient aristocracy in the American civilization. They have been expected to perform all the usual functions of an aristocracy except the function of rule itself. They have set the styles. They have set the manners. They have largely set the whole mental attitude of the nation. Their domination of Canada has not been much less.

And the proof that they have really established themselves as a separate class, a real aristocracy, is the lack of public envy at their opulence. The people might object to the rich folks on Fifth Avenue. They might complain about the big interests and the bankers of Wall Street. They might vote for Roosevelt and the New Deal; but they never complained when the stars of Hollywood lived in a luxury which would make poor Louis XIV seem like an old age pensioner in Burnaby. On the contrary, they expected Hollywood to live that way. They wanted it to live that way. They wanted Hollywood, both on the screen and privately, to create a kind of beautiful legend and fairy story, a sort of earthly heaven which the ordinary person could not achieve but could at least look at and forget his own troubles.

END OF A DREAM

BUT WHEN IT is announced that Miss Crawford is elbow-deep in a dishpan or weeping over a peeled onion, what becomes of the great legend? No one looking at Miss Crawford out of the screen hereafter, no one seeing her in the lap of luxury and in the arms of some rich and glamorous lover, will ever quite believe it. Everyone will think about the dishpan and the onions.

The whole basis of the great Hollywood dream is completely smashed and if the owners of the movies know their business they will get Miss Crawford out of the dishpan immediately. She is too precious a property to be wasted in this way, and the investment in the whole movie industry is too large to be damaged by the appearance of actuality and real life. The dream will never survive the onion.

Perhaps it is impossible to save the dream anyway. Perhaps Miss Crawford is doomed—oh, horrid thought—to remain permanently in the dishpan. Perhaps a new age has dawned. For despite all the Tories, despite the Ottawa Journal, which thinks I am a dangerous revolutionary because I suppose the Conservative Party to be in a jam, despite all the natural lethargy and conservatism of the human animal, times do change, and they have changed rapidly during our brief life.

BULBOUS AGE

AT THE TURN of this century there was no Hollywood, only a stretch of sagebrush and cactus (which was not such a bad idea at that). There was no aristocracy of the films, no beautiful dream. But there was an American aristocracy just the same, and it was much harder to look at than the aristocracy of Miss Crawford. It was a rich, swollen, bulbous aristocracy built on the expanding days of the railways, the factories, the slaughterhouses of the west, and it lived in rich, swollen and bulbous houses. Traces of them can still be found in many American cities, and where they used to be only hideous, now, by the gentle passage of time, they have taken on a kind of patina, a sort of nostalgia, and many men look at them and remember the great days of the past as if they were better days than we shall ever know.

A few of these same houses can still be seen in the west end of Vancouver, for the aristocracy of that time was widely spread, and we had our share of it when our country was opening up. But there, as everywhere, the old bulbous house of the Teddy Roosevelt era is run down, battered and dingy. Usually it is turned into apartments for poor people. Surely that marks a real change in the folkways of America. Surely something has happened to the world in the short span of 40 years.

The rich have moved to smaller houses. And if you look at the present income tax schedules you are bound to predict that they will move to still smaller houses and there will be a bargain sale in mansions all over this continent before long. This does not mean, however, that all talent, industry and ability will fall to win recognition. We may be entering an age where talent will be recognized more highly than the mere ability to make money.

We may be entering an age where the engineer, painter, poet, architect, or politician may be granted the same acclaim which formerly went to rich men. Indeed, we may well be entering a new age where Miss Crawford will be honored not as a glamorous, rich and privileged person, but as a real artist and a hard worker. At first it will be hard to take her, with the culinary perfumes of the kitchen. But as time goes on, as the new age progresses, we may honor her for her household toil. We may worship her as formerly, dishpan-hands and all.

Re-enter the Battle Wagon

From New York Herald Tribune
WITH SO many details about the action in the Solomons still missing, it is probably idle to talk about its "lessons." But one cannot miss certain striking aspects of the engagement. It marks the first announced appearance of American battleships in action in the Pacific (they may also have been present on Oct. 26, but the fact was not stated); it was largely a gun duel, while the aircraft carrier was conspicuous by her total absence from the Japanese side and apparently from the American side as well. "Our faith in the battleship," says Admiral Nimitz, "has been justified." The statement should probably not be made to carry more weight than was intended, for land-based aircraft also played an important part. But as the battle wagons "opened up," "swinging from the floor," to use another of the admirals' phrases, one can well believe that Admiral Halsey thanked his stars that he had them.

Indeed, we here seem to see naval war, which has undergone so many dramatic transformations, entering still another phase. In the Pacific the process, which was easy to anticipate, whereby the overwhelmingly powerful yet highly vulnerable carriers would kill each other off, leaving the field to the gunnery ships, seems to have gone far toward completion. The Oct. 26 action was the last example so far of rival fleets slugging at each other with their aircraft while standing far out of range or sight of one another; and there may not be another such action until the new carriers and carrier conversions are available. But meanwhile it is not the classic fleet action which has been restored, for the problem of land-based aircraft—which may normally be expected to be present near almost any likely battleground—remains to make that sort of full-dress, daylight battle a difficult business.

THE ANSWER so far seems to be the night action, Macassar Strait, the Java Sea, the disastrous affair in which we lost four cruisers off Guadalcanal and now this victory of the Solomons were all night actions. Originally the Japanese seemed considerably more adept at the art than we. Evidently they are no longer. Where Jellicoe probably lost many of the fruits of Jutland because a night battle was too unfamiliar a business for him to risk one, the present-day gunnery ship is being forced to make darkness its proper element. To take Guadalcanal, the Japanese had to get men and guns—which meant surface ships—to the

Cwacs in London Find 'Pea-souper' Fog Thrilling

LONDON (CP)—Nobody can tell members of the Canadian Women's Army Corps serving in Britain anything about a London fog. They have been through about as foggy a night as London ever had or will have.

Not long after their arrival here a fog settled over London and, though the girls' residence was only 15 minutes' walk from the building where they work it was decided to send them home in two trucks because of their lack of familiarity with London. Both trucks left the office district at 6 p.m. The first arrived at the residence at 7.45 p.m., the second at 8.20 p.m.

FINDING THEIR WAY

"You just couldn't see a thing and our driver would go ahead just a few steps at a time and then get out and try and determine where we were," said Pte. Cecilia Eardley Wilmut of Quebec. The girls found it more thrilling than frightening to experience such a fog. "We just sat in the truck and sang 'Lost in a Fog,' 'Show Me the Way to Go Home' and so on until we finally made it," said Pte. Stella Cromar-Bruce of Vancouver.

The Oak Bay subdivision of the Catholic Women's League will hold a bouillon party Wednesday afternoon, starting at 2, at the home of Mrs. John Hart, 1961 Fairfield Road. Mme. J. L. Griffith will sing, Mrs. Kathleen Green will give monologues, and Mrs. C. S. Beals, piano solos.

Airwoman Bride Of Naval Chaplain At Cathedral Today

A romance which started in the east between a naval chaplain and an airwoman culminated in a wedding at Christ Church Cathedral this afternoon at 4.30. The bride was Miss Helen Dorothy Dowley, eldest daughter of Mrs. W. C. Dowley and the late W. C. Dowley of Brockville, Ont., and the groom is Rev. George E. Graham, R.C.N., only son of the late Mr. Francis E. Graham of Brockville, Ont., and Mrs. Graham, 948 Esquimalt Road, Victoria.

A graduate of Trinity College, Toronto, Mr. Graham is acting chaplain in charge of the Naval Barracks here. Miss Dowley is a graduate of Queen's University, Toronto, and was well known in eastern musical circles as an accomplished pianist. Until recently she was stationed with the R.C.A.F. (W.D.) at Guelph, Ont., and only arrived Friday from the east.

Rt. Rev. Harold E. Sexton, Bishop of Columbia, performed the ceremony, assisted by Very Rev. Spencer Elliott, Dean of Columbia. The service was fully choral, and as the bride entered the church with Capt. F. G. Hart, R.C.N., who gave her in marriage, the choir preceded her to the chancel, singing the hymn, "Lead Us, Heavenly Father, Lead Us." Later in the service the choir sang the chorale, "God Be In My Heart" and the hymn "O Perfect Love," sung to an old Welsh tune. Mr. Stanley Bullock, Cathedral organist and choirmaster, was at the organ.

The bride wore a gown of brushed wool jersey in deep blue, trimmed with gold, the full skirt ending in a long train, and the sleeves in bracelet-length. Her halo hat of similar material was finished with a veil, and she carried a white prayer book shrouded with gardenias.

Mrs. W. S. Connell of Hamilton, Ont., was her only attendant, gowning in clover-leaf crepe in floor-length, with bracelet sleeves, worn with a matching hat which was trimmed with pink and blue flowers and veiling. Her corsage bouquet was of gardenias. Lieut. Sam Ross, R.C.N.V.R., was best man, and acting as ushers were Fit-Lt. Grant Stevens, R.C.A.F., and Lieut. H. Powys-Herbert, R.C.N.V.R.

After the ceremony a small reception was held in the Duke of Kent private dining-room at the Empress Hotel, which, like the church, was effectively arranged with white chrysanthemums.

Mrs. Graham assisted the bride couple in receiving, wearing a black crepe gown trimmed with gold, a small black hat adorned with pink feathers, and a corsage bouquet of pink roses. As the customary toasts were honored, the bride cut the three-tiered wedding cake with the sword which had belonged to the groom's father.

Following a honeymoon trip to an unknown destination, Rev. and Mrs. Graham will make their home at 948 Esquimalt Road.

Junior League Plan Snowball Dec. 29

Lavish blue and silver decorations will be a feature of the "Snowball," the gala holiday dance which will be held at the Empress Hotel Tuesday, December 29. Mrs. George Fawcett, convener of the Snowball, announced to a meeting of the Solarium Junior League held last night that arrangements were now well in hand for this popular event. A popular orchestra has been engaged and interesting entertainment will be featured. Members of the committee busy on plans for the Snowball include: Mrs. A. Hall, Mrs. A. C. Radford, Mrs. Graham Harris and Mrs. Charles Saxon. Tickets may be obtained at the Empress Hotel, the Owl Drug Store and from members of the Solarium Junior League.

A resolution was passed at last night's meeting that the league become incorporated under the Societies Act of British Columbia, and arrangements to have this done are now being made. With the president, Mrs. P. H. Brown, in the chair, the members made plans to go up to the Solarium on Sunday, Dec. 13, to decorate for the annual Christmas party and tree to be held Dec. 17.

Mrs. W. H. Maynard Jr. announced that the sum of $21.49 had been collected from the penny boxes during the last month.

A new member, Miss Betty McAuliffe, was welcomed into the league.

Girl Stowaway From New Zealand Reaches B.C.

VANCOUVER—A young New Zealand girl who left a dance in Lyttelton, N.Z., one evening and stowed away on a merchant vessel coming to Canada, has the war to thank that she won't be deported.

Her name is Rhona Smith and she is staying at the Y.W.C.A. in Vancouver while the immigration authorities keep a friendly eye on her. She must report to them daily and far from wishing to go home she wants to get into war work in the city.

"If we had a Chinese here we couldn't send him to China," declared Fred Taylor, district superintendent of the Immigration Department for B.C. and the Yukon. "The young woman is here and we will help her all we can. There are no boats to New Zealand so we can't send her home."

Rhona, for her part, is pretty happy about the whole thing.

IN FANCY DRESS

At the dance, which was a fancy dress ball, she heard the Canadian sailors talking about Canada and with nothing but a new-born eagerness to see Canada and still clad in her fancy dress costume, she went down to the docks, seized a rope dangling over the side of the ship and climbed aboard.

Safely out to sea she emerged from her hiding place in the hold of the ship and was taken to the captain.

From cook to captain the crew gave her every service and took care of her when she was ill. She rewarded them by entertaining them with songs and giving imitations.

honor was presented with a corsage of chrysanthemums, the same flowers forming the decorations of the reception-room and centering the tea table.

The hostesses were assisted in serving tea by Mrs. Harold Price. Mrs. G. H. Holmes, president of the W.A., presented the guest of honor, on behalf of the members of the branch with a handsome black leather bag purse, the guests uniting in singing "For She's a Jolly Good Fellow." Among others present were Mesdames G. Hedley Holmes, E. Walter, P. E. Lowther, J. Compston Kingsbury, H. Johnson, F. Stacey, W. M. Palmer, G. J. Mouat, D. Simpson, J. Carter, J. Byron, H. Price, W. Norton and D. Beddes.

Mr. George Strath, son of Mr. and Mrs. George C. Strath, 330 Denison Road, and Mr. Douglas Hunter, son of Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Hunter, 35 Linden Avenue, left today for Glendale, Cal., where they will take courses in aeronautical engineering at the Curtiss-Wright Technical Institute.

An entertainment and dance will be held in the Colwood Hall Dec. 11. The R.C.A.F. orchestra will play for dancing. A good variety program has been arranged. Proceeds will augment the war fund of the women's auxiliary, Prince Edward branch.

Langford and Colwood Anglican Young People's Association dance will be held in Colwood Hall Dec. 4.

Miss Carol Boyer, whose marriage will take place shortly, was guest of honor recently when Mrs. A. B. Cross and Misses W. Cadwallader and J. Finch were joint hostesses at the home of the former, 2780 Thompson Avenue. The bride-to-be received a corsage bouquet of pink carnations and many useful household articles. A bowl of mauve chrysanthemums centred the lace-covered table, from which the hostesses served refreshments. Those present were Mesdames A. Boyer, J. Atkins, S. Cullingford, A. Mezger, C. Waggett, J. Miller, J. Smith, L. Small, D. Galey, R. Schuster, F. Hebdon, Misses R. Wallace, V. Curtis, M. Tull, M. Smith, D. Dobbie, K. Sparrowhawk, N. Steele, E. Clark, P. Garlick, D. Roberts, M. Elrick, R. Crowhurst, E. Ledson, J. Stark, B. Dawson and B. Boyce.

Mr. David H. Sharpe and Mrs. Sharpe, nee Vivian Curtis, were honored at a party given at Terry's in farewell to Mr. Sharpe, who left Sunday evening for Edmonton to resume his pilot's training in the R.C.A.F. A corsage bouquet of mauve orchids was received by Mrs. Sharpe, and Mr. Sharpe was the recipient of several personal gifts. While honeymooning in Vancouver recently the bride and groom attended the graduation and dance held at "The Cave" in celebration of the completion of their initial course by Mr. Sharpe and all his classmates. When he left the city, Mr. Sharpe was accompanied to Vancouver by his bride and his mother, Mrs. W. Sharpe. On her return here, Mrs. D. H. Sharpe will make her home with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Curtis, 1617 Camosun Street, for the present.

'Have You an Extra Room?'

By HELEN BOTT

Canadian women are being called on by Donald Gordon to open their homes to soldiers and war workers. If this is not done voluntarily it may be necessary to it by compulsion.

"This means more than renting a room—it means caring for the people we take in, not only letting them into our home, but into our home life. For many women this can be their most valuable form of war service. After all, these people have left comfortable homes, not for personal gain but to serve their country."

To share one's home isn't easy. Some of us have found this, when we have had relatives living with us. We may think that with strangers it is simpler—we can lay down the law and see that people don't overstep the mark of our private lives. But whenever you deal with people, difficulty is lurking.

After all, what are homes for? Are they a refuge and a retreat—a private, protected world of our own? Or are they the place where the nation learns to pull together—generating plants for the will to win? Such a spirit will spread to every stranger included in the family life. Women at the heart of such homes must be more than shock absorbers, or buffers between their families and the "outsiders." They must know how to resolve conflicts, create unity and send people out to build a united nation.

Here is the story of one young couple whose home for years has been mobilized 100 per cent in the service of the country. Patriotism for them spelled people, and their home was open to all who put country before self-interest.

An English evacuee and her three-year-old daughter were taken in as part of the family. This woman had lived in luxury and it was not easy to have her as a guest. Neither did she find it easy to learn the "self-service" methods of Canadian life. Her ideas of child training were the oretical and strongly held. The two sons of her hostess had been brought up in an atmosphere of affection and a framework of discipline. However, these two women, despite their different backgrounds, were willing to be open and honest with each other. Difficulties were brought to the surface and resolved, as each one cared enough for the whole family to give up selfish demands.

A woman who had worked in the English home of the evacuee came to see her one day and was so astonished to find her former employer washing dishes that she stayed to help with the household! She sensed something different from other homes, and asked, "What is the secret?" She was invited to bring her husband and son—both industrial workers—to dinner. The husband was bitter and rebellious, the son restless and full of grievances. A strike was brewing in the aircraft plant where he worked. As their difficulties were discussed, the newcomers began to see the connection between personal frustration and industrial unrest. They saw that there was a way out—in taking the blame themselves and putting things right, rather than in pointing at the faults of the other fellow.

Simple illustrations, yet women need to be reminded that what happens in their homes can make or break the spirit of the nation. Life put it well the other day, "If men are the measure of a nation's strength in the field, then women are the measure of its determination at home. . . . The standard that the women set for this continent today will determine the stature of our victory. Set that standard high, women of Canada. Make it tough, so that we may win something of which we can be proud."

Women can do much more than take in boarders to help win the war. They can build the nation's life. This is the condition of victory. Canadian homes that pull together will pull the nation together.

Weddings

Mr. George Hutcheson was best man and the ushers were Messrs. Bill and John Hutcheson.

The groom's mother wore a dress of navy blue trimmed with white and a dark hat to match when she received the guests at a reception at the groom's parents' home. A toast to the bride was given by Rev. H. W. Kerley. Mr. and Mrs. Hutcheson will reside in Victoria.

COUTTS-BAXTER

Following their Vancouver Island honeymoon, Lieut. David James Coutts, R.C.N.R., will return to Esquimalt where he is stationed, and his bride, nee Thelma Baxter, will continue to reside in Vancouver. The marriage of the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Reginald Baxter and the son of Major and Mrs. David Coutts of Bothwell, Scotland, took place Saturday evening in St. Phillip's Church, Vancouver, Rev. Roy Manwaring officiating.

The bride's frock of "Hawaiian Sky" bengaline crepe was styled with sequin sleeves, draped bodice and peg-topped skirt. Her white veil fell from a seed pearl Juliet cap and she carried a white prayerbook and Cattleya orchids.

As her sister-in-law's matron-of-honor, Mrs. R. Baxter, was gowning in starched gold lace over taffeta with matching hat and colonial bouquet in autumnal shades, Mr. O. J. McRoberts was best man and Messrs. Alan C. Ralsbeck, Robert S. Milne and James F. Davis ushered. The reception was held at the home of the bride's parents.

"For travel the bride wore a negro brown dressmaker suit and matching accessories. Pro Patria W.A. held a towel and apron shower at the home of Mrs. A. ## King's Daughters' Sale Saturday

Miss Kathleen Agnew will formally open the annual Christmas sale being sponsored by the King's Daughters, Saturday afternoon, from 3 until 6 o'clock, at the Y.W.C.A.

Final plans for the sale were made at the district meeting of the King's Daughters, held Monday afternoon, the president, Mrs. A. M. Perry, presiding. The circles will be responsible for the stalls as follows: Ready to Help, aprons and shopping bags; Fellowship, home cooking; Ministering, fancywork; Space we'll bobble, wear; L. H. Hardie, novelties; Hawthorne, wartime refreshments. The proceeds are received by the individual circles in aid of special work.

Mrs. Perry gave her report of the recent executive meeting of the King's Daughters of British Columbia, held in Vancouver. In accordance with the government's wish to curtail civilian travel the annual convention was canceled and the money saved thereby put into a Victory Bond.

Other reports revealed the rooms were open 26 days, and were visited by 1,936 patrons. The following articles were turned in for Bundles for Britain: Two pairs of socks, one pair of bed-socks, four pairs of felt slippers and two pairs flannellette pyjamas. Two dirty bags were filled and given to the Navy League, and an Afghan donated to the Salvation Army. The patient in Mount St. Mary's received gifts during the month and was taken out for walks. The group is sending parcels to soldiers overseas.

A STATEMENT about BUTTER

In spite of the fact that in some Canadian cities butter supplies recently have not been sufficient to meet the greatly increased demands, the situation does not constitute an emergency; nor is it as serious as some people seem to think. There are two main causes for these temporary and local shortages:

For the past year we have been consistently using 10% to 15% more butter than in normal times—with consequent disturbance to the distribution of our butter supplies.

Many people have been buying more butter than they currently need.

The limited nature of the present shortage is shown by the fact that if every home would reduce its consumption of butter by only one ounce per person per week (for the average home this means a quarter of a pound a week)—or if we reduced our national consumption to the peacetime rate—the shortage would soon disappear.

There is no Reason for Panic Buying

It is unpatriotic and unnecessary for housewives to rush out to beat their neighbours to the nearest grocery store. Butter will not be rationed to meet the present situation. Butter production is actually above normal for this time of year. The Board itself is taking special action which it is believed will speedily restore normal supplies in retail stores.

HOW TO SAVE BUTTER

AT MEAL TIME

1. Use butter only for spreading on bread.
2. Never use butter just out of the refrigerator. Wait until it is soft enough to spread easily.
3. Add a small amount of milk when creaming butter for sandwiches.

IN COOKING

1. Do not use butter in baking and cooking, when lard, shortening or meat dripping can be used.
2. Use level measurements of butter. ... Guesswork means waste!
3. When adding cheese to a cream or white sauce, use only half amount of butter stated in recipe.
4. Use paper wrappings from butter to grease baking dishes.
5. Do not use butter for sautéing vegetables.
6. Serve meat gravy to avoid the use of extra butter on potatoes.
7. When adding butter to vegetable dishes, add it sparingly. Do not melt it and then pour on.

These supplies will however be adequate for normal consumption, if housewives in all parts of Canada co-operate.

You can help in these ways:

Scrupulously avoid waste and extravagance. Waste is wrong at all times. In time of war it is sabotage.

Reduce present consumption of butter by at least one ounce per person per week—(for the average home this means a quarter of a pound a week.)

Do not buy more than is needed for immediate use.

Wartime Housing Opens Staff House

Wartime Housing Ltd's first Esquimalt staff house for bachelor shipyard workers, its accommodation and services rivaling those offered by many good hotels, was formally opened Monday noon before an attendance that included R. W. Mayhew, M.P., Norman Yarrow and representatives from Yarrow's shipyards, Reeve Alex Lockley and members of the Esquimalt Municipal Council, H. W. Davey, chairman, and members of the local advisory committee to Wartime Housing Ltd., and Ald. T. W. Hawkins, representing Mayor Andrew McGavin.

Single shipyard workers, employed at Yarrow's, started moving into the staff house today. With accommodation for 97, the two story building is the first of two that have been under construction during the past few months. Another, with the same accommodation, will be completed in a month's time. Both front Admirals Road and are separated by a large and modern commissary at which each man may eat for $1 per day.

Run along hotel lines, the staff building has 15 single rooms and 41 double rooms. The single rooms rent for $4 per week, and the double rooms at $3.25 per person per week with hotel service, which includes towels, soap and orderlies to clean the rooms and make the beds. Besides beds, the rooms are equipped with tables, mats and lockers.

The building has four wash-rooms, two on each floor. Each is equipped with nine wash basins, two showers and two water closets. Inside the main doors is a large lounge with leather upholstered chairs, and to one side is a writing room where tenants may use stationery supplied by Wartime Housing Ltd.

Superintending the house are Mr. and Mrs. Fred Hamilton, who live there in their own private suite. A door from their suite leads to the registration desk.

J. Barile, administrator for Wartime Housing Ltd. in Esquimalt and Victoria, conducted the brief tour through the staff house.

At 1.30 the guests inspected the commissary and then sat down to a hearty four-course meal, prepared by Roy Fong and his staff of seven Chinese. The commissary is designed to serve the single men, but people living in the 175 Wartime Houses in the vicinity will be allowed to eat there if they wish.

Meals cost 35 cents each or $1 a day for three meals. The commissary staff will also pack lunches for the men, most of whom have to eat at the shipyards because they have not the time to travel to the commissary during their half hour lunch period.

"They supply an urgent need," Mr. Yarrow said, speaking of the staff house and the commissary. "The staff house has better accommodation than many hotels and I feel that it will add to the contentment and efficiency of the men working in the yards."

Mr. Barile said more such staff houses would be erected if there was a demand for them. At present, he indicated, the one already completed and the other scheduled to be finished early this month, would be sufficient to meet present demands.

No Milk Act Planned for B.C.

VANCOUVER (CP) — Reeve R. M. Grauer of Richmond municipality said here that Premier John Hart, in an interview with the Fraser Valley Reeves' Association, had refused to consider any request for a milk act.

"He received our representations very favorably, but he would not have anything to do with a milk act," Reeve Grauer, delegation spokesman, said. "He said he would not put the people to all that trouble."

Reeve Grauer said Premier Hart told the delegation he would pass on to Ottawa a resolution from the association asking for the formation of a public utilities commission to deal with the milk question.

"The commission would probably be similar to that set up for the apple growers in the interior," Mr. Grauer said. "It would set the price for grades of milk and see the producers made production costs."

He said the association will ask Ottawa to order a raise in the price of milk until such time as the commission is formed.

Premier Hart declined to make any statement on the conference, which was also attended by Agricultural Minister MacDonald, Attorney General MacLennan, Henry Rive, provincial dairy commissioner, and A. McInnes of the Markets Branch, Department of Agriculture.

Central Union, W.C.T.U., will meet Thursday at 2.45 in the Y.W.C.A. parlor. Members please bring their dirty bags for the forces.

Ferraro Leaves Oilers

Sports Snapshots

By CHARLES EDWARDS

Montreal Oilers, who lost to Victoria Dominions in the Dominion basketball final last spring, are in competition again but without coach Johnny Ferraro who has returned to United States. Len Hutton is playing coach and manager and other Oiler holdovers are Ted Edwards, Jim Courtwright and Bob Irwin. Centre Pat Griffin must remain out of the game for some time yet because of an eye injury suffered in the 1942 final.

Edmonton No. 3 M. Depot, R.C.A.F., has a bang-up cage team including the former Vancouver stars, Jack Neal, Lance Hudson, Jimmy Bardsley and Bill Adhead. The long-time Victoria hoop aces, brothers Chuck and Art Chapman, are divided at last. Art is a member of the Victoria Army team. Chuck is undecided whether to retire.

NO BLOCKING

TORONTO (CP)—Sidelight on next Saturday's east-west football final: Lieut. Dick Haughian, who captained Santa Clara University gridgers in California before moving to Calgary to play and coach Bronks in the Western Interprovincial Union, is stationed with the Canadian Army in the east and saw most of the Ontario Union games this season. Graduate of the football school stressing importance of blocking. Haughian, west of Furgough, told Bob (Calgary Herald) Malmi: "In the east there's little or no blocking and they go in for end sweeps with a lot of lateral passing . . . and that would be all right but 75 per cent of those lateral passing plays backfire."

Questions for Lieut. Haughian: If western style blocking is so important to good football, why were Toronto Argos, who used an offence almost identical with that of the current eastern champions, Toronto Hurricanes, such a handful for western challengers in other years? And, really now, do those lateral passes backfire so often? (Answers Saturday).

INCIDENTALLY

Sgt. Fritz Hanson, the former Winnipeg football whiz, is recovering from an injury suffered on army manoeuvres. . . . Clary Sette will interview members of the Winnipeg R.C.A.F. Bombers football team over the CBC national network from Toronto Friday from 7.45 to 8 p.m. E.D.T. (4.45 to 5, P.D.T.)

RUGBY has claimed "its" third, well-known Victoria rugby and lacrosse coach. "I had Penketh with me from his early years and watched him develop into a great athlete," McInnes said. "He was a fine boy and his unfortunate death is a terrific blow. Johnny was one of those athletes who had too much grit. On the lacrosse floor, especially, he displayed far too much nerve. But that was the way he played the game and one had to admire him for it."

No doubt Penketh's death will draw a storm of criticism against rugby. Any sport suffers from an accident of this nature. It must be remembered that any line of athletics calling for bodily contact carries a certain amount of risk, but one can't blame the game. Year after year United States football takes its toll but the popularity of the sport has never waned. It is that same bodily contact that makes a sport like rugby popular with red-blooded youngsters and they will continue to play the game as long as goal posts stand. To those left behind we extend our deepest sympathy. Johnny has gone but his great athletic record and fine sportsmanship will live long in the memory of those who played with and against him.

Under present arrangements the Victoria representative club will engage in four matches with Vancouver, the winner to take possession of an intercity cup. Victoria will be able to trot out a first-class squad, although we know the selectors are going to have their hands full selecting a club. There is a wealth of soccer material here and it is going to be no easy job picking the right men for the 11 positions. Victoria soccer fans will see their first intercity match of the season Boxing Day. That is the word from Pat Mulcahy, who returned to Victoria some time ago and resumed his position as local commissioner. Team from the Pacific Coast League in Vancouver will come over to tackle an all-star eleven from the local circuit. Plans call for the Victoria eleven to travel back to Vancouver for a match the Saturday following New Year's Day.

N.W. Spitfires, R.C.A.F. Lead Mainland Hockey

NEW WESTMINSTER (CP)—Judging by the games played to date in the Mainland Senior Hockey League the New Westminster Spitfires and R.C.A.F. teams will do most of the fighting for top place in the league standings.

Both teams won games in a doubleheader here Monday night, Spitfires defeating Army 10 to 2 and R.C.A.F. taking a 3 to 2 decision from St. Regis. It was the third win for the unbeaten New Westminster squad, and the second straight victory for the army men, who have dropped one game to Spitfires.

Ken Hage, Ed Trites and Hall each scored two goals for Spitfires with Ed Downey, Klyne, Eisenzopf and "Shorty" Coombs netting the others. Gardner found the New Westminster net for both Army goals.

In the other game Bill Pyatt, Maddock and Ev Porteous made good their shots for Air Force, with Art Schuman and Lundie scoring for St. Regis.

Watson and Allen Win Golf Turkeys

With respective net scores of 66 and 67, R. W. Watson and William Allen won the prizes Sunday in the annual Uplands Golf Club competition for turkeys. Thirty-five men entered the competition and some splendid scores were turned in. Competition was under full handicap.

Stan King's 4 Goals Beat Sailor Puckmen

Rose Bowl Threat

Sets Record In Flyers' 7 to 5 Win

Behind the potent scoring of clever Stan King, R.C.A.F. sprang the upset of the current Island Hockey League campaign Monday night at the Willows Arena, upsetting the second place Navy, 7 to 5. King put on the smartest individual scoring exhibition this year with four goals and one assist.

Victory boosted the Flyers into a three-way tie with the V.M.D. and Nanaimo for third position. After dropping their first three games the lads from Pat Bay have come back with a vengeance to knock over the V.M.D. and Navy in succession.

Their latest triumph is certain to create added interest in the circuit with the teams more closely bunched. Flyers are improved every time out and will prove a tough nut for any of the four remaining outfits to whip.

Flyers came up with another valuable addition in the person of Paul Platz, formerly of the Chicago Black Hawks in the N.H.L. Although it was his first time on ice this season, Platz turned in a valuable night's work relieving on the defence.

Despite the handicap of new skates and lack of condition, he showed the fans plenty in his brief spells on the ice.

Navy were beaten because they couldn't stop the number one R.C.A.F. line of Bobby Kirk, King and Joe Krol. The trio accounted for six of their seven goals and marked up a total of six assists. Kirk had two goals and a like number of assists, while Krol gave three assists.

Bluejackets showed a lot of fight in defeat and it was not until the final R.C.A.F. score, with four minutes to go, that the result was definite. Up until that time the Navy had matched the Flyers goal for goal and for a brief time in the second period showed in front.

PLAY RUGGED

Play was rugged with eight penalties Jimmy Lowe of the R.C.A.F. being the worst offender with three trips to the cooler. Jack Tomson, big Navy defenceman, made two visits. Navy took advantage of one penalty to score two goals, while the Flyers got one counter with the sailors short-handed.

Only two minutes and 10 seconds had elapsed when Doug Verity fired the opening goal for the Flyers on a perfect goal-mouth pass from Lowe. Seconds later Lowe drew his first penalty and before he returned Murdo McKay and Glenn Richardson had scored two quick goals to give the Navy the lead. Minutes later Tomson went off for two minutes for tripping and the R.C.A.F. made a power play payoff, Kirk beating goalie Hemming with a shot along the fee from 10 feet out.

Platz got two minutes for tripping as the second period opened and the Navy swarmed around the Flyers' goal. Back to full strength the airmen put on an attack of their own and Hemming kicked out three sizzlers in succession from Platz, Kirk and King. At 9:01 Navy went into the lead, Brown pushing the rubber into the corner, after a pretty passing play with Strongman and Petrie. Flyers fought back and King started his one-man scoring act to put the clubs even. Less than a minute later he flashed the red light again to end the period with the airmen on top, 4 to 3.

Game was held up early in the third when big Chuck Millman on the Navy defence knocked Verity senseless with a terrific body check. After being helped from the ice Verity returned to the game soon after, none the worse for the bump. At 5:01 King made it 5 to 3, slapping the puck home during a scramble in the Navy goal. Strongman matched the score on a pass from Petrie at 7:32, but King grabbed another goal at 13:27 and Richardson got the Navy within a goal again at 14:01. Navy threw every man up in an effort to tie it up but Kirk added the clincher at 16 minutes on a pass from Krol.

Friday night's game will see the league-leading Army tackle the V.M.D. Saturday night the R.C.A.F. make their second appearance of the season at Nanaimo.

Terry's Resignation Ends 20 Years With N. York Giants

CHICAGO (AP)—Bill Terry, Monday, ended 20 years' association with New York Giants while the National League's board of directors was considering the plight of the derelict Phils and Terry himself said he would like the opportunity of taking over the Philadelphia franchise.

The 42-year-old former first base star, who managed the Giants to three pennants, issued a short statement to announce his resignation as general manager of New York's farm system, a position he assumed last winter.

He said he had suggested to president Horace Stoneham that the second year of his two-year contract be terminated because curtailment of the Giants' minor league operations made it doubtful that he could earn his salary, reputed to be $30,000. He emphasized, and Stoneham agreed, the parting was friendly.

Nothing concerning his plans was included in Terry's announcement, but in discussing his future with newsmen he said that taking charge at Philadelphia "is exactly the kind of an opportunity that I would like."

The league's directors conferred for several hours today on the problem of the Phils, which have been offered for sale, and it was understood that Gerald Nugent, club president, and his attorney, Robert Irwin, presented a set of four alternative plans under which Nugent might continue in control.

One of these was assuredly a request for permission to sell some of the Phils' better players—a privilege which Nugent has been denied since he borrowed approximately $100,000 from the league last spring.

No official explanation of the matters discussed by the directors was forthcoming and it was presumed that the problem was placed before the entire league today.

Monday's session was presided over by league president Ford Frick. When it was over Frick was summoned to a conference with commissioner Kenesaw M. Landis and president William Harridge of the American League.

The resignation of Terry provided the assemblage with its first big jolt. He had been with the Giants continuously since 1922, when he joined the club as a player. He succeeded John McGraw as manager in 1933 and won pennants that year and in 1936 and 1937. At the winter meetings a year ago he achieved a long time ambition to get into the executive family of the Giants and his place as field leader was taken by Mel Ott.

DETROIT—Young Kid McCoy, 155½, Detroit, knocked out Wild Bill McDowell, 156, Dallas, Tex. (4).

Dorothy Dix:

A Tightwad Husband Means A Dissatisfied Wife

Dear Miss Dix—I have been married four years and have a two-year-old son. My husband believes in carrying every cent he possesses in his pockets. He never even leaves me a quarter in case I need something while he is at work. He never gives me any decent clothes. Think I ought to be satisfied with working dresses, and I have so few of them that I have to wash one when I take the other one off. He thinks I should be thankful to him because he gives me a roof over my head and enough to eat.

The other day I sneaked $20 out of his pocket. Half of that I spent on him and the rest on the baby and myself. I thought by spending the most on him he wouldn't say very much, but he did. He said he worked for the money and could spend it as he wished and from now on I would never get another penny. Now that I have taken the $20, he looks himself and his precious money in his room when he goes to sleep. He makes good money and we could be very happy if he would just give me a small allowance.

Should I expect more than a bare living? Or should I go on and not say any more about it?

WORRIED WIFE.

Answer—I don't think there is any other fault a husband can possibly have that can make his wife so unhappy and so dissatisfied, as for him to be a tightwad. Nor can a husband do anything that fills his wife with such contempt for him, as for him to be so stingy that he begrudges her the very food she eats and the clothes on her back.

The man who refuses to give his wife a fair share of his income and an allowance for her own personal needs reduces her to a state of penance. He is making a slave of her because he forces her to work without wages, well knowing that she earns much more than her board and keep by her services as cook and laundress and baby-tender and general domestic drudge.

I think that any woman is foolish to put up with such treatment from her husband, and that she should tell him frankly that unless he gives her some money, as is her right and as pay for her labor, she is going to leave and get a situation in some other man's kitchen, where she will at least get a servant's wage.

Don't worry about having sneaked $20 out of your husband's pocket. That question has been legally decided in a case where a husband, as close-fisted as yours, had his wife haled into court ruled that it was a wife's privilege to do so when her husband's penuriousness forced her to get money out of him while he was practically unconscious. Furthermore, that it was no theft, since the money a husband earned belonged as much to his wife as it did to him.

HUSBAND ALLERGIC TO BABIES

Dear Miss Dix—I am a woman 30 years old. Have been married five years to a fine man. We have a beautiful home. He is kind and generous to me and I have everything I want except a baby, and that is what I crave more than anything else in the world. When I married Bob I knew he didn't like children, but I thought he would change. However, he is worse than ever. If I even mention the word baby he almost screams, saying I know how nervous he is and that he couldn't stand a bawling brat around him, and that a baby would be too much trouble for me, and that I would look haggard with worrying over it, and so on and so on.

I think the reason he objects to a baby is because of jealousy. He wants all my attention centered on him and cannot stand the thought of my loving anyone but him, but a baby would make me love him even more. What about it?

ANNE.

Answer: Well, it seems that you were forewarned before you were married as to Bob's being allergic to children, so you have only yourself to blame for your predicament. Of course, you are a victim of wishful thinking, as are most other wives who are confident they can make their husbands over to their hearts' desire after they get them. And generally they do.

Evidently you are right in thinking that the reason your husband doesn't want a child is because he wants to monopolize all the babying, and he can't stand the prospect of having his nose put out of joint by a little moon-faced infant whose goo-goo is more entertaining to his mother than his brilliant conversation.

Maybe you are handling the situation wrong by still further inflaming his jealousy by gushing and going into raptures over every child you meet, and by letting him see that he does not suffice for your happiness. Every time you have hysterics over some little darling and call it pet names and say how wonderful and beautiful and marvelous it is, it confirms him in his theory that he is a wise guy not to introduce any rival on the scene. So why don't you drop the baby theme, instead of harping on it, and turn a cold and indifferent eye on all the toddlers and give his jealousy a chance to die for want of food.

Perhaps if he thought you could take a baby in your stride, so to speak, without centering all of your attention on it, he wouldn't be so averse to having one of the little pets. But don't lose hope. What a woman sets her heart on she nearly always gets. And the stork is an erratic bird whose movements can't be predicted and it is just as likely to leave a baby in the homes to which they are not invited as it is in the ones where they are wanted.

And don't worry about how your husband will take it. The greatest baby-hater I ever knew turned into an insufferably boastful father when he had one of his own.

Serbs Massacred

LONDON (CP)—Jugoslav government quarters charged Monday the Bulgarians were pursuing "a ruthless policy of extermination and massacre" against Serbs in areas of former Yugoslavia assigned to the Bulgars for policing under the Axis set-up.

These sources said a Bulgarian detachment killed 600 Serbs, including women and children, at the village of Kriva Reka.

THERE'S NOTHING LIKE IT?

Carved out of solid rock, the Egyptian Sphinx has stood for 5,000 years, a mute monument to the co-operative effort of thousands of people.

Like the Sphinx a TIMES WANT AD represents the co-operative effort of thousands of people. Every day TIMES Want Ads in their silent systematic manner perform miracles which the ancient Egyptian world would have marveled at.

There's nothing like the response which TIMES Want Ads perform as the constant results show.

Riveting Plays Part In World's Work

Welding has taken the place of riveting to a large extent, but riveting still plays a big part in the work of the world.

The word "rivet," strangely enough, goes back to the word "river." It came from the French language, and it seems to have been first used to describe the fastening of a boat to the shore of a river.

If that was the first meaning, there has been quite a change.

The riveting machine shown is closing the rivets on a steel pipe 21 feet in diameter.

Today a rivet is a pin or bolt used to fasten two pieces together. The "pieces" are commonly of metal.

In past times the usual way of riveting was with hand-hammers, bolts and heat. Holes were punched at the edges of two pieces of metal, and the edges were placed together so they overlapped each other with the holes fitted together.

The next step was to place bolts through the holes and to hammer one end of each bolt, the end which had no head. Heat made the iron soft at that end, and the man who swung the hammer was able to pound it down without too much trouble.

The same plan for riveting is widely used today, except that better tools have largely taken the place of the hand-hammer. A workman may be supplied with a hammer which is made to pound by compressed air. Some hand-hammering still goes on, but that is old-fashioned.

Electric power also has come into the field of riveting. Huge "presses" work at a fast rate. One man with such a press may do the work of 20 men using a slower method.

The power needed on large jobs is very great. Sometimes there is a "squeeze" of 200 tons to close a rivet and to press the pieces of metal together.

Merchant vessels have no thick sides of steel like those of warships. Yet many of them are covered with metal sheets which are riveted where the edges meet.

Iron and steel mills turn out large sheets of metal, and these are rolled so they can be used in pipes, but the edges need to be fastened tightly. The process of welding may be employed for big pipes, but sometimes the edges are riveted.

Cobble Hill Fire Wipes Out Hotel, Threatens Village

Wilton Place, one of the oldest buildings in Cobble Hill, and a district landmark, was early today wiped out by a fire which threatened the rest of the village. The loss was $20,000, partly covered by insurance.

The alertness of Glen, a watchdog owned by George Bonner, and a three-hour fight by men and women of the village, prevented the flames from spreading from the hotel to other buildings.

A large pile of sawdust stored near the post office was still smouldering some hours later, and was being closely watched.

DOG GIVES ALARM

Mr. Bonner, who operates a store near the hotel, said today he was awakened by the barking of his dog, a half-breed, part Alsatian and part collie, which has twice before given alarms during attempted burglaries. Bonner saw flames leaping through the roof of the hotel from the vicinity of the fireplace.

He roused the phone operator, Miss Bessie Trinder, who in turn called every resident she could reach, and sent in an alarm to Shawinigan Lake.

Men of the village turned out and formed a stirrup brigade from the Bonner fishpond, being assisted by two elderly residents, Mrs. M. Chapman and Mrs. H. Trinder.

Meanwhile, the women, including Miss Isabel Barker, Miss Dolly Seales, Mrs. W. Seales, Mrs. Les. Barry and Miss Connie Finner, formed a bucket brigade and added their efforts to those of the men in attacking the rapidly-spreading flames.

It was not until the A.R.P. fire truck arrived from Shawinigan Lake, eight miles away, that the fire was controlled. The truck was in charge of Arthur Leighton, V. Dugan and Mrs. Beulah Smith, while Ben Williams ran the hose to the hotel well.

Built more than 50 years ago, Wilton Place is now owned by A. Mighton. Former owners included J. Wilkinson, J. Price and A. Macklin. It was a two-story frame structure, containing a tavern and store, besides hotel rooms and offices.

3 Cars Damaged In Collisions

Cars driven by Dexter Lewers, 809 Yates, and by C. Finnimore, 3135 Somerset, were damaged in a collision which occurred Monday evening on View Street near the Canadian Legion.

According to police reports Lewers' car was at the north curb of View Street and the Finnimore car was being driven west on View when the collision occurred. A fire on the Finnimore car was torn.

The accident was witnessed by LAC. C. F. Purvis.

John Halbet, 2644 Roseberry Avenue, told police Monday that while driving west on Esquimalt Road in swerving to avoid two cyclists, his car had struck a telephone pole. The car was considerably damaged, Halbet said.

He asked police to warn cyclists about riding in the dim-out without proper lights.

Fewer Motor Cars On B.C. Highways

Motor cars continue to decrease in number on the roads and highways of British Columbia, according to the October report of the motor vehicle branch of the Provincial Police.

At the end of October there were 99,076 passenger motor vehicles in B.C., compared with 102,811 at the same time a year ago.

During October 863 cars were licensed, compared with 930 in 1941.

Total motorcycles in B.C. at the end of October were 3,036, compared with 2,357 in 1941. During October this year 75 motorcycles were licensed, compared with 35 last year.

Showing the increased number of service wagons and industrial trucks is the increase in chauffeurs' licenses—18,977 at the end of October, compared with 15,984 last year. In October this year chauffeurs' licenses jumped from 496 to 840.

There are fewer automobile salesmen, licenses for this group being down at the end of October, from 538 in 1941 to 319 this year.

Streetcar Dimout

G. M. Tripp, superintendent of the B.C. Electric Railway here, announced today workmen had already begun to put hoods on all streetcar headlights. The hoods, he said, were similar to those used on railway locomotives.

Because of a shortage of materials, Mr. Tripp said it would probably be two weeks before dimming out of streetcars was completed.

The internal lighting of the streetcars will not be changed because of the dimout. Cars are already equipped with blue lights which, in time of emergency, can be extinguished by pulling a switch.

Present Game Act Protects Rights of Farmers, Says 'A-G'

Farmers may shoot game interfering with their crops under the present B.C. Game Act, Attorney-General R. L. Maitland said today, replying to a resolution from the Cowichan Agricultural Society, asking that the Game Act be amended.

A group of Cowichan district farmers asked the Attorney-General to give farmers and their employees a free permit authorizing them to destroy deer and other vermin on their property and by pit-lamping if necessary. They also ask that, because of the meat shortage, deer shot be sold for human consumption.

In his reply to the society Mr. Maitland quoted a report made to him on the subject by F. R. Butler, game commissioner.

Mr. Butler said that for some time the commission had been issuing permits to farmers in Cowichan district, authorizing them to shoot deer at night, where these animals had been doing damage. Permits had also been freely issued in favor of farmers and others complaining of damage by pheasants, Mr. Butler said.

PROXY PIT-LAMPER
"If a farmer desiring a permit to pit-lamp deer is unable to carry out such pit-lamping operations himself, then we would be quite prepared to give favorable consideration to the issuance of a permit to any responsible person whom the farmer wishes to pit-lamp the deer for him," Mr. Butler reported to the Attorney-General.

Regarding the suggestion that deer meat should be sold, the game commissioner said that the existing Game Act prohibited sale of deer meat, and "we would not care to recommend any amendment to allow the sale of big game, except in the extreme northern sections of the province, where such game meat is required for food purposes."

Mr. Butler told the Attorney-General: "We have extended every co-operation in the issuance of permits to destroy game actually doing damage, and we will go further and assist any farmer or any other resident has cause to feel, when his crop is put in, that deer or pheasants will do damage to such crop, then we will quite properly issue a permit to such farmer, giving him authority to shoot, on his own property, the game which is likely to do damage."

The game commissioners will attend a meeting in Victoria Dec. 13 of the advisory board of the Farmers' Institutes of B.C. and will attempt to clear up many misunderstandings regarding farmers' rights in respect to game.

Nazi Ship Sinkings Claims

Tim Buck Says

Labor Big Factor In Peace Policy

"Labor will prove," said Tim Buck, Dominion secretary of the Communist-Labor Total War Committee, in an interview here today, "the most vital factor in determining the policies to be adopted at the peace table."

He asserted that the termination of the war would see tremendous influence brought to bear for a return to the policy of free enterprise, but the great majority of the people would see to it that the world did not revert to the system which prevailed prior to 1939.

Contrasting the national unity of Soviet Russia in its magnificent fight against the aggressor, as compared to the tragic disunion and demoralization of France, Buck quoted Wendell Willkie speaking in Toronto Wednesday: "Whether you like it or not, the social economic system of the U.S.S.R. operates in the interests of all the people and not in the interests of the privileged few."

Hailed by overflow audiences wherever he has spoken on his present speaking tour of Canada, Buck will speak this evening at the Royal Victoria Theatre, on "The Turning Point of War Toward the Strategy of the Offensive of the Allied Powers."

DEFEAT HITLER FIRST

In calling for an all-out offensive, Buck stressed, the time to change our system of government is after Hitler has been defeated, not before. "Our job now," he said, "is to ensure that as a result of the present unity of the democratic peoples of the world there shall be victory and better things to follow."

The end of the war, said Buck, would see in Canada more than 1,000,000 men returned from war work; 750,000 from the armed forces and those of the ancillary activities would have to be placed. Hundreds of factories in existence would have stepped up production to an amazing degree. "So what?" exclaimed Buck. "Where do we go from there?"

Accused Drinking When Machine Lost

Francis Felix Daniels, naval warrant officer, told an assize court jury today he was under the influence of drink during the period in which a typewriter was reported missing by naval authorities, when testifying in his own defense against a charge of stealing the typewriter, receiving it and retaining it, knowing it to be stolen.

Daniels said he had purchased the machine from an unknown person at a club, but did not know how much he had paid for it.

"Neither was I exactly aware of what I was really doing at that time because I had a bad touch of luck at home in England. My house had been bombed down. Over and above this I began drinking quite a lot. At that time I had quite a lot of money at my disposal. I've found since that during the time the typewriter was missed I was on 14 days leave."

"When I purchased the typewriter I had no idea or thought of it having been stolen, nor did I think it was of the value I've learned it was."

DID NOT NEED MONEY

Witness said he recollected his friend, Mr. Hayhoe, saying he needed a typewriter and agreed he probably sold it to him and then carried it around in the back of his car, quite openly, for a period of weeks when its origin was questioned. He said he had no need for money at the time the machine disappeared as he was receiving $7.50 a day from the navy as well as money from England and his pension from the Royal Navy in which he had served for 26 years, rising to the rank of chief petty officer.

He submitted his conduct sheet for naval service, showing his character registered as very good, and said he had co-operated with Constable J. E. Banks when questioned about the machine in September last.

Earlier Banks had said he had gone with the accused to the club where Daniels said he had contacted the man who sold him the typewriter, but had been unable to locate the unidentified person.

The accused took the stand after the counsel for the defense, Mr. Justice Sidney Smith, presiding, had to have the case withdrawn from the jury and dismissed on the grounds identity and ownership of the machine had not been proved. Cross-examination of Daniels by J. B. Clearhue, K.C., crown counsel, was reserved for the afternoon.

TESTIFIED MONDAY

Witnesses heard Monday afternoon were Arthur R. Cann, John Molson, Mrs. Audrey Hayhoe, and L. G. Clayards.

Potato Statement Expected Shortly

OTTAWA (CP)—A prices board spokesman said here it was expected a statement dealing with the prices fixed for potatoes in British Columbia would be issued shortly by Foods Administrator J. G. Taggart.

(British Columbia potato producers have withheld shipping to the Vancouver market for the past 10 days following an order of the Prices Board reducing the price $13 per ton. Some retailers have started a voluntary rationing plan to spread out available supplies, pending the resuming of shipments. Producers claimed the cut was too drastic.)

Quebec Bishop Warns Against Service Clubs

SHERBROOKE, Que. (CP)—Msgr. Philippe Desranleau, Bishop of Sherbrooke, has asked Roman Catholics here to avoid membership in "neutral societies and clubs"—including Rotary, Kiwanis, Lions and Elks—because they "display complete religious neutrality" and "proclaim the putting aside of all religious creed."

Msgr. Desranleau, in a pastoral letter read in all Roman Catholic churches in this Eastern Townships district, asked Roman Catholics to deny "without delay" their membership "if, by error," they have been associated with such societies.

Vancouver Bishop O.K.'s Service Clubs

VANCOUVER (CP)—Archbishop William Duke, Roman Catholic Archbishop of Vancouver, said today Msgr. Philippe Desranleau, Bishop of Sherbrooke, doubtless had "local reasons for urging Catholics to avoid membership in service clubs" in a pastoral letter read in churches to his diocese.

(Msgr. Desranleau urged Catholics to avoid membership in "neutral societies and clubs" including Rotary, Kiwanis, Lions and Elks because they "display complete religious neutrality" and "proclaim the putting aside of all religious creed.")

Archbishop Duke said "so far as Vancouver is concerned I have no prejudice against any of our service clubs. I believe they are responsible for much charitable work that is religious in spirit if not in name."
